Mothers Hit for Six

Mothers of Glenlyon boys warmed up for match with under-12-year-old school team yesterday at Beacon Hill. Here, at wicket, Mrs. W. P. Bowden watches Mrs. John Wade take warm-up swing. In fielders' positions are Mrs. G. Petter and Mrs. Harry Gladwell. But all their practice went for nought; the schoolboys beat their mothers handily.

Dock Decision Awaited

New Ferry Service Deal May Go Through Today

Veteran U.S. Vessel Ready for Service

A Washington State Ferries vessel will begin a Victoria-Port Angeles service on Saturday, June 18, if the docks of Black Ball Line Ltd. are available.

The vessel, probably the veteran Kalakala, will have room for 320 cars and 4,000 persons each way during her four round trips a day, seven days a week. The service will end October 15 until late spring of 1956.

The CPR will continue to operate three daily round trips until late September, as scheduled some time ago.

Eagerly awaited announcement of a replacement for Black Ball's Mv. Chinook was made by H. L. Crombie, managing secretary of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and C. E. Blaney, WSF representative in Victoria, following their return from a three-hour conference with WSF officials in Seattle yesterday.

They stressed that the service depends on the outcome of negotiations for Black Ball terminal facilities in Victoria at a meeting at 10 a.m. today with Capt. Alex M. Peabody and Col. George Paulin, both of Black Ball.

Victoria negotiators will be G. F. Dunn, chamber vice-president; Mr. Crombie and Mr. Blaney.

Colonel Paulin said last night that company docks in Victoria and Port Angeles are available for lease and added: "We will go into the meeting with every co-operative hope."

"We definitely have the assurance of Washington State Ferries for a modern ferry that will be quite adequate for the run, provided we can obtain terminal facilities," Mr. Crombie said.

Mv. Kalakala, expected to replace Black Ball Ferry's Chinook on Victoria-Port Angeles run, can carry 80 cars, 1,000 passengers.

Depends on Finance

"It is too early to say that we have overcome this transportation problem as the whole decision about its institution now lies with Black Ball officials," he said. "If financial arrangements can be completed satisfactorily, the service is assured."

Mr. Crombie said the chamber felt Black Ball "has failed us very sadly so far and we hope for their utmost co-operation" in obtaining Victoria docks. WSF officials will negotiate with Black Ball for it's wharves at Port Angeles.

The terminal facilities will have to be leased "at a reasonable rate," he said. "The tourist flow this season suffered a setback from the sudden withdrawal of Black Ball and will have to be rebuilt at great expense."

"We are quite sure that with the proper advertising, there is sufficient traffic from June 18 to mid-October to make the run a profitable one for both the CPR and Washington State Ferries," the chamber official said.

He added that there will "most likely" be four WSF round-trips a day, seven days a week.

Mr. Blaney said the WSF vessel will not operate after October 15 because " it will be a summer operation, similar to our Sidney-Anacortes service."

However, he added, "There is a strong possibility that if the prime consideration of terminal facilities can be solved, this service will continue in future years and may be expanded to the benefit of all concerned."

Within 48 hours of a financial agreement for docks, Mr. Blaney said, "definite schedules will be announced and a publicity campaign will be instituted immediately."

The two officials pointed out that Victoria organizations and WSF must notify all parts of the United States, especially the west coast, that service has been restored.

Well-Equipped Vessel

"The vessel we have in mind will perform to everyone's satisfaction," he said. "She is well equipped to handle all types of traffic on the basis of four round trips a day, as at present proposed."

WSF offer was received by Mr. Crombie Wednesday. He said the officials in Seattle were "most co-operative and were anxious to give maximum service."

George I. Warren, Victoria & Island Publicity Bureau commissioner, also attended the Seattle conferences.

WSF was reperesented by Floyd McDowell, general manager; H. G. Swendson, administrative assistant, and an independent traffic survey engineer who has a wide knowledge of Pacific Northwest transport.

Kalakala, now connecting Seattle and Bremerton, was described by Mr. McDowell as the "only practical ship for the Victoria-Port Angeles run."

He told The Daily Colonist last night that "it may take a week or so" to juggle ships so that present WSF customers are not affected.

"But at least we're trying," he added.

Civic, municipal, provincial and business officials in this area will meet in the office of Mayor Claude Harrison at 3 p.m. today to hear a report from Mr. Crombie and Mr. Blaney on negotiations with Black Ball.

Stuart Keate, chamber president, in a telegram to CPR president N. R. Crump at Montreal yesterday, said his statement Wednesday that the CPR could not help was a "bitter disappointment."

"We cannot help feel we are innocent victims of a private war between CPR and Black Ball, provoked by their entry in Nanaimo competition, your entry Port Angeles route, thus skimming cream off both," he said.

"Must advise you Canadian Pacific's public relations and prestige in this area severely damaged, with government, business and labor already on record deploring this neglect of duty to important capital area."

Canada Hits Back-Door Bid

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada protested Thursday — for the second day in a row — against a back-door attempt to rush through Congress legislation more than doubling the U.S. tariff on hardboard imports and, in the Canadian view, clearly violating the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

'Public Will Suffer'

Staff Cut Result Of Freeze Order Says St. Joseph's

Authorities at St. Joseph's hospital said yesterday they could see no alternative but to cut staff to meet the provincial government's freeze order on hospital budgets.

"It's the public that's going to suffer," commented the Sister Superior. "We are just not in a position to cope with our 1955 budget."

Meanwhile Royal Jubilee administrator George Masters says his hospital will not cut services to meet any rise in operating costs.

"Those of us who spend all our time worrying about these problems have tried to explain our position to the government, but without success," said Mr. Masters yesterday.

Health Minister Eric Martin feels that staff cuts could be made without reducing services, but nearly all hospital administrators in the province disagree.

Sister Superior of St. Joseph's admitted that it would be almost impossible to maintain the present services if there were staff cuts.

"I don't see how we can cut our services because it would directly affect the sick people we are here to benefit," she said.

Wages at St. Joseph's, she said, were not as high as those in other hospitals, although they were comparable to the wages paid at Royal Jubilee.

"They are definitely not as high as they are in Vancouver," said the Sister Superior.

She said St. Joseph's administrators had always tried to keep costs down to a minimum but "we've been running very close to the margin in the last few years and 1955 looks even more grim."

Scrap Army To Strengthen RCAF Chief Air Force Adviser Suggests

Officials Predict:

U.S. To Command Canada's Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—More clues to a coming vast air defence buildup in Canada have been divulged by officials here.

It appears likely that most of this buildup — airfields, control towers, hangars and housing for personnel—will be undertaken by the United States.

One authority said the Canadian government is anxious to have American servicemen, who probably will do the job, designated as forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This would partly get around the touchy, for the government, matter of Canadian sovereignty in regard to U.S. forces in this country.

The latest hints about the buildup came Wednesday at Montreal from Air Marshal Roy Slemon, chief of the air staff, and Air Vice-Marshal Larry Wray, chief of air defence command.

Air Marshal Slemon was reported as telling a group of aviation writers that Canada and the U.S. are moving toward a completely unified North American air defence system with a single over-all commander.

MILITARY THINKING

In reply to a question about this in the Commons Thursday by Opposition Leader Drew, Defence Minister Campney said the air chief was not declaring government policy but "was simply stating a trend in military thinking."

Outside the Commons, officials said appointment of an over - all commander would have political ramifications, such as the probability that an American would be peacetime commander of Canadian armed forces.

They said there already is close integration of the two countries' air defence commands. Fighter planes closest to the point of any attack would go up to meet it, irrespective of which country they belonged to.

TORONTO (CP)—Air Vice-Marshal John L. Plant, formerly of Victoria, Canada's top military adviser on air weapons, said Thursday night the army should be abolished to make manpower available for a stronger air force.

Canada's limited population is not sufficient to support both a fully-effective army and air force, he said. He was speaking at a dinner of the Aviation Writers' Association.

"My suggestion to the government, if they ever ask me, would be to do away with the Canadian army and put the money into a few aircraft.

"We should put our effort into the things that cost the most dollars and take the least number of men"

Modern military aircraft cost $2,000,000 each, and require only a few men to operate. Any army division of 20,000 men cost little more than three or four aircraft.

It is elementary economics that in Canada's case the most prudent investment would be in the aircraft, Air Vice-Marshal Plant said.

He said he was not voicing government policy but was prepared to support his statements.

Air Vice-Marshal Plant said that if war broke out with Russia the Western powers would have little difficulty winning.

"We are keen, anxious and willing to take them on any time they attack us. And we will knock hell out of them."

REPORTERS RESPONSIBLE

He told the 300 U.S. and Canadian journalists they have been guilty at times of stirring up "a helluva panic about all the things that go on behind the Iron Curtain."

Referring to recent articles painting the Russians as having wrested air superiority from the west, he said:

"I wonder if our memories are not a bit short.

"If he hadn't taken on the West, Hitler and the Germans could have licked the Russians.

"Without weapons of mass destruction, we could lick them hands down—and why we should be scared I'm damned if I could see."

"We do have weapons of mass destruction and we are going to plant them on them the minute they kick over the traces."

In Ottawa Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, Chief of the General Staff, said Air Vice-Marshal Plant's words sounded like "a very irresponsible speech on which I would not care to comment."

Montreal Vice Drive Shuts 24 Night Clubs

MONTREAL (CP)—City police wielded the big stick Thursday and closed up 24 Montreal night clubs and liquor - dispensing establishments.

Pacifique Plante, assistant police director who heads the anti-vice campaign, said the 24 have been refused municipal permits for this year. Renewals were granted in 135 cases.

The move was the first big crackdown since police announced in March that city operating permits would not be granted automatically, but only after applicants had been screened. All clubs were allowed to remain open during the check up.

Blind Man Gets Sight In Dispute

NORWICH, England (Reuters)—Blind Peter Barr got into an argument with his wife last week, struck his fist on his palm—and suddenly the woman he had never seen materialized before his eyes.

"In about 15 minutes I could see," the 34-year-old man said Thursday. "The first thing I did was kiss my wife, then I broke up my white stick and threw it in the fire."

Barr has been blind for three years.

'Fanaticism' Cited After Tax Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—An independent member of the Commons said Thursday Quebec does not want to be the victim, in federal matters, of the "ignorance and fanatism on which certain religious organizations in British Columbia gorge themselves."

Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, talked of the "narrow-mindedness of certain Pacific coast Protestants" and said their views, transplanted in the federal field, "would be harmful to our beliefs and our school system."

Mr. Gagnon injected his remarks in a Commons speech supporting his motion—ruled out of order—calling for full deductibility of the Quebec income tax from federal income tax.

The 46-year-old furniture merchant charged the federal government has overshot its rights in making grants to Canadian universities.

"It is an injustice against Quebec taxpayers who pay a considerable share of these grants largely collected by institutions which refuse to recognize the rights of our compatriots in other provinces."

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF spokesman Thursday attacked as "inherently wrong" the federal government's decision to cut its personal income tax levy 10 per cent in Quebec—only province levying its own income tax.

Hazen Argue, Assiniboia, said in the Commons the move will create an income tax structure "which cannot help but contribute to national disunity."

"This looks like an ill-conceived attempt to maintain the political fortunes of the Liberal party in the province of Quebec," he said.

Mr. Argue urged that, instead of the federal proposal, Quebec or any province should have the option of collecting its own income tax. Deductions from federal tax collections should be on a scale equivalent to what the province would otherwise receive under a federal-provincial tax rental agreement.

Two Quebec Independent members, Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Fernand Girard, Lapointe, criticized the federal move as inadequate.

Who Laid an Egg?

Pigs Is Pigs, but What Is Rabbits?

FRANCOIS LAKE, B.C. (CP) — Are rabbits always rabbits, or does it depend on their environment?

In northern B.C.'s Francois lake, Mrs. H. Neave raises rabbits as a hobby and thinks environment is stronger than heridity. Last year a mother rabbit died, and Mrs. Neave farmed the bunnies out to a barn cat. The cat adapted herself and the rabbits well, and soon had her charges eating meat and turning down greens.

The payoff came recently when one of the rabbits finally snapped and started making like a chicken. It's doing all right so far, sleeping in the hen house, rolling in the dust and strutting around the pen, but has two problems: How to climb up on the perch and how to lay eggs.

Mrs. Neave is watching closely to see how the rabbit manages these difficulties, particularly the egg-laying.

Problem Not New — Science Counter-Attacking

Germs Battle Wonder Drugs; Penicillin Losing Punch

BY PETER BEUTON

Penicillin is losing its punch!

So, too, are other antibiotics, such as streptomycin, polymycin, terramycin and similar disease-killers that were hailed as "wonder drugs" when introduced a few years ago.

Dr. Murray Anderson, medical officer of health at Royal Jubilee Hospital here, says it is all due to the individual germs becoming more resistant to the drugs.

"There has been an increasing number of infections which don't respond as readily as they used to do upon treatment by antibiotics," said Dr. Anderson.

The problem, he says, is not a new one.

Germs are becoming more resistant to the antibiotics in much the same way as an inoculation of a small number of germs into a human being will cause a solid resistance to a full-scale attack from a certain disease.

"But of course you must remember that new antibiotics are being developed all the time," said Dr. Anderson.

Doctors and nurses who daily come in contact with disease germs are more prone to infection now than a few years ago. And their infections are harder to clear up.

"Actually it's affecting all people, not just nurses and doctors in particular," said Dr. Anderson.

He said there are a large number and range of antibiotics and it is a continuing race to keep ahead of them.

However, antibiotics are finding startlingly broad applications in other fields and by serving as efficiency experts they are already raising the standard of living.

Antibiotics, for example, are making silk worms produce silk more quickly and are speeding up the honey output of bees.

Recent experiments raise hopes that the drugs also will prove effective in keeping fresh food longer. Terramycin, tested on fish, greatly reduced its spoilage rate. And the experimental use of antibiotics on vegetables added two days to the store life of spinach and kept cole slaw fresh three times longer than usual.

Scientists predict that it will not be long before antibiotics become as popular for non-medical use as they are today in the field of medicine.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE other day I wrote a piece about the dismal squabbles in the letters column between atheists and Christians.

It seemed to me that a great number of atheists were religious bigots, and a great number of Christians were kindly helpers of humanity.

As a social doctrine, the Christian faith has done a little harm and a lot of good; and has in fact been the greatest civilizing force in the West.

So I questioned the wisdom of trying to destroy it by violence, leaving its followers adrift and hopeless. If religion is untrue—as the atheists claim—it will die on its own.

The atheists naturally resented being described as bores and fanatics. So they wrote me some hot letters. Here is one from Harold V. O'Reilly, 908 St. Charles street, which I give you word for word:

* * *

"You have an advantage when censuring those who write letters to the editor, in as much as everything you say will appear in print whereas what I might have to say will be minced or cut by the editor, before printing, or maybe consigned to the wastepaper basket in its entirety.

"The sixth paragraph of your 'clever' column (Colonist, May 28) should surely read as follows: A great number of those who speak for the faith are tedious bores and fanatics; a great number of those ranged on the atheist side are helpers of humanity.

"Giving evidence for the second part of that revised statement, I'm privileged to enclose for your perusal and return a list of some of the world's best known atheists and agnostics.

"I'm certain your opinions pro or con must be puny when compared to opinions of any of these men."

And he encloses a list of present and past honorary associates of the Rationalist Press Association Ltd. of London. Present associates include Bertrand Russell, Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, Dr. Julian Huxley, Dr. Brock Chisholm and Prof. F. Joliot-Curie. Past associates include Emile Zola, Leonard Huxley, Prof. H. J. Laski, Prof. John Dewey and Sigmund Freud.

* * *

On the other hand, N. T. Porter of 3710 Craigmillar avenue has this to say:

"This morning's column was very apposite; those persons who use the correspondence column to argue their own particular viewpoint on religion (or politics, or art) are liable to be crashing bores; the trouble is that they have hides like buffaloes, and no amount of snubbing appears to be of any avail. Surely only matters of particular (as opposed to general) interest merit publication; and then only those containing useful suggestions or criticism?

"Your line of reasoning, though perhaps regrettably agnostic, is curiously reminiscent of that employed by the famous Gamaliel (Acts v:34, seq.) who is still regarded as one of the greatest lawyers Jewry ever produced; and that is no small claim.

"A lapse of nearly 2,000 years has not robbed his arguments of their force. And if he could have seen the effect Christianity has had on the world in that interval (in spite of the shortcomings of individual earnest Christians) I feel sure he would have agreed with you . . ."

* * *

A reader who does not sign his name writes as follows:

"If you took time to read Joseph McCabe's 'History of the Popes' you might decide that . . . (the Christian faith) was in reality a nightmare and blight upon humanity until less than 400 years ago. It's a rank fallacy to say the faith 'has given us law and mercy.' Only one deficient in historical knowledge would make such a statement."

And he quotes the statement: "If religious faith is as false as they say, why do they make such a fuss to destroy it? The thing would destroy itself in time."

"The same could be said of communism, but will it destroy itself? However, it does look as though this incomprehensible nonsense called 'religious faith' is lifting, like a fog, from the intelligent minority of humanity. Are we to have no pity for the majority?" So says the anonymous reader.

* * *

"You will not deny that at least a few atheists have helped humanity," writes L. J. Pepper of 1161 Fort street. He cites Lincoln, Jefferson, Florence Nightingale, Einstein, Sir Arthur Keith, "a few dozen others I could name, and practically all men of science."

He quotes some angry words by apologists for Christianity to prove that not all the bigots are on one side. "I have never except once in 1934 been able to have a single believer . . . discuss his faith with me. On that occasion I did have a public debate with a Church of England clergyman . . . I, of course, defeated him. He told me that on next Sunday . . . he was going to strike out on a different course. But before the next Sunday his next above him, the canon . . . had interviewed the unlucky clergyman, and he was moved to Quebec. The church cannot afford to be other than bigoted and unkindly."

* * *

"Atheists are boring because they voice their own vaunted wisdom . . . in contradicting their Creator," says Louis George, 1060 Craigdarroch place. "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God.' Imagine the idiocy of anyone who would contend that a violin or a steam engine invented itself, yet alone a human creature? Who hung the earth or the sun on nothing, and ordained they would act in rhythm?"

Untimely Death

Officer's on Mat Over Mascot Cat

PORTSMOUTH, England (CP)—The untimely death of Butch, a cat mascot of the Royal Navy cruiser Cleopatra, is back in the headlines here, this time with a court case.

An officer of the Cleopatra, Lt.-Cmdr. L. S. Hinton, was summoned to appear in court here next Wednesday to answer a charge that he did "unlawfully and cruelly terrify" the cat by roping it and throwing it in the sea. The summons was applied for Wednesday by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Butch became a source of embarrassment to the navy — and the subject of glaring headlines—last month. Bound with rope and weighted down, he was tossed off the Cleopatra into Portsmouth harbor. A sailor was ordered to dive in and rescue the cat, but Butch was so badly injured he had to be destroyed.

The mascot — just a tawny old tabby — was the favorite of the Cleopatra's 20 or so cats. And he was the first to suffer in a purge.

Someone decided that the cruiser had too many cats, so Butch and several others were condemned to death. The rest of the cats, except for a couple, were banished ashore.

The ordinary seamen aboard the Cleopatra were annoyed, formed a "Save Our Cats Society," and complained to the RSPCA.

Garden Notes

Extra Attention Benefits Corn

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

"Turkie Corne be not from Turkie, but out of America and the Islands adjoining, as out of Florida, a-! Virginia or Noremb ega, where they use to sowe or set it to make bread of it. It is planted in the gardens of these Northern regions, where it commeth to ripeness when the Summer falleth out to be faire and hot; as my selfe have seen by proof in myne owne garden.

"Turkie Corne doth nourish far lesse than either wheat, rie, barley or otes. The bread which is made thereof be hard and dry as Bisket is, although the barbarous Indians, which know no better, are constrained to make a vertue of necessitie, and thinke it a good food; whereas it nourisheth but little, and is of hard and evill digestion, a more convenient food for swine than for man."

Poor Gerard, with all his great knowledge of plants, never knew the delights of corn on the cob, spread with lots of butter and a sprinkle of salt, and eaten in the fingers. Even to this day, the English seem to have no real understanding of corn, and although the presence of so many overseas troops during the Second World War did a lot to popularize it, I still see recipes in English papers instructing housewives to boil it for two hours!

By this time, the corn from your earlier sowings should be nicely up and growing strongly, but there are a few little attentions you can give it from here on in which will make a lot of difference in the number, size and flavor of the cobs you harvest.

The first thing to check is the spacing of the plants. All of us sow our seed far too thickly, probably through a fear born of experience that a lot of the seed won't come up. The thinning should be done immediately, before the plants start to feel the ill effects of overcrowding. The final spacing for the hybrid varieties and other tall-growing kinds should be a full 12 inches, while even the modern and early dwarf varieties should have eight inches between plants in the row.

CUT, DON'T PULL

Don't go pulling up the excess plants, though. Cut them off at soil level with a sharp knife or a pair of scissors. You see, corn is intensely resentful of any disturbance of its roots, and you can't pull up the intervening plants in a crowded row without giving the plants which remain a setback, causing them to go into a fit of the sulks for a week or two. By the same token, any weeds in the row should be cut off rather than pulled up. The beheaded corn plants and some of the weeds will probably sprout again, but they will be too late and too low to affect the crop.

Weeds between the rows should be removed with the Dutch hoe, scuffling them off just beneath the surface. Corn hasn't any too many roots to start with, and the loss of any through deep hoeing or cultivating can be a serious matter.

For several years now I have made it my practice to sow beans in the corn rows when the corn reaches three inches of height. I pick a semi-tall variety such as Top Crop or Improved Tendergreen and sow one seed at the foot of each corn stalk. The bean vine twines itself around the corn stalk, and both plants seem to be extraordinarily happy in their association with each other.

Shakespearean Excerpts Score

BY BERT BINNY

A great deal of genuine enjoyment was the lot of a considerable audience at the Normal school concert which started a three-day run last night.

The opening group of items, "The Way of a Maid," consisted of four scenes from Shakespeare, each introduced by commentator Leslie Field. Miss Field is delightfully easy to hear—which could not always be said of all the participants in the excerpts.

Costumes and settings were most effective.

Dorothy Plant's interpretation of Portia was open to some question though it settled into something quite acceptable latterly. Both she and Linda Maddaford as Nerissa spoke too fast.

Margaret Little as Rosalind from "As You Like It" was vital and pleasing and Susan Harrison's Juliet, visually fine, lacked seriousness. Dawn Bell as "The Nurse" (from "Romeo and Juliet") was excellent.

In "The Taming of the Shrew" with Shirley Chase as Katherine, some greater variation in tone would have enhanced this performance.

Mixed chorus of the Normal school, with four songs from the sixteenth century, performed ably.

In "The Rehearsal," Lawrence Richards as "Mr. Burbage" playing "MacBeth," was convincing. Robin McColl's "Lady Macbeth" leaned to low comedy—as it should—and was very effective.

The second half of the program was devoted to the third act of Benjamin Britton's "Let's Make an Opera".

The cast made a mighty fine job of a challenging task. All the characters were well established.

Outstanding was Barbara Lawson as "Juliet Brook." Helen Lawson as "Miss Baggott" had a wonderful second act, and Jean Manly as "Sophie Brook" was also excellent.

Cast was composed of Normal school students reinforced by performers from Lansdowne and Margaret Jenkins schools. They showed every indication of careful direction.

An exterior chorus introduced each scene and the accompaniment was provided by Joyce Butler and Elizabeth Turner, piano, and William Bertsch, violin.

The program was directed by Miss Kay Baker and Boyce Gaddes and will be repeated tonight and Saturday.

Tito, Bulganin Seek End To Military Power Blocs

BELGRADE (Reuters) — President Tito of Yugoslavia joined with Soviet Premier Bulganin Thursday night in calling for an end to military power blocs and admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

The two Communist leaders, in a declaration setting forth the points of agreement between their countries after talks here lasting eight days, also called for "satisfaction of the legitimate rights of (Communist) China" over Formosa.

The two countries urged establishment of a system of European collective security based on a treaty, and asked for a solution of the German problem "in the interests of the German people and of general security."

The Russian and Yugoslav leaders also called, in their policy statement, for disarmament, development of the peaceful uses of nuclear energy and a ban on atomic weapons.

This was the first document signed jointly by leaders of the two countries since Yugoslavia was expelled in 1948 from the Cominform, a Soviet dominated grouping of European Communist parties.

But Deficit for Radio

$4,562,000 Surplus For CBC TV Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC, helped by a $16,960,000 federal grant, is expected to show a surplus of $4,562,000 on its $954-55 television operations.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, also told the Commons broadcasting committee Thursday that sound broadcasting, which will receive $10,760,000 from the federal treasury, is expected to show a deficit of $306,000.

Mr. Dunton said the 1954-55 television "surplus" will be "used up" to finance TV services in 1955-56. This would permit the CBC "to get by in the current year."

The television service, he said, is expected to receive income of $21,273,000, including the $16,960,000 statutory grant—which is borne by the Canadian taxpayer. Revenue from advertising was estimated at $4,156,000, private broadcasting station licence fees $142,000 and miscellaneous income $6,000.

Expenses during the year were expected to be $15,876,000, leaving a "surplus" of $4,562,000 after providing for depreciation. The income figure represented a gain of about $8,200,000 a year over the previous year and expenses were expected to rise by $8,500,000.

Mr. Dunton said the CBC feels that in 1955-56 income likely will decline to $15,360,000 because of the current drop in the price of television sets.

The statutory grant received by the CBC for its television operations includes the 15-per-cent sales tax on television sets and tubes. The amount which would be collected in the current fiscal year was expected to drop by about $1,500,000.

He said income for sound broadcasting is estimated at $13,434,000 for 1954-55. This would include the statutory grant of $10,760,000, advertising revenue of $2,116,000, private broadcasting station licence fees of $285,000, interest on investments of $105,000 and miscellaneous income of $168,000.

The estimated income was down about $1,000,000 from the previous year. Expenditures were expected to increase by $700,000 to $13,739,000, leaving a deficit of $306,000 after providing for depreciation.

The provincial government has donated $1,000 toward the Strathcona relief fund to aid survivors of a disastrous hotel fire in Nelson, B.C., on May 27.

Six persons lost their lives in the fire which destroyed the frame construction Strathcona hotel.

Saanich Program

They Plan Parks

Saanich is laying plans for a possible expansion of parks and parks activities, according to an announcement to The Daily Colonist by Coun. Robert Fleming last night.

Mass meeting of interested parties to be called, will include softball and baseball promoters, [illegible] tives, Saanich recreation council, sports council and all PTA's.

"We'll meet at municipal hall within three weeks," he promised.

"The purpose of the meeting will be to determine how many activities can be sponsored and carried out under supervision and how many different activities the public would like the parks committee to foster," he said.

Coun. Fleming disclosed that the parks committee has asked regional planning director Brahm Weisman to make a complete survey of dedicated park sites in Saanich, both in use and unused, to determine the future park needs of the municipality.

He said Saanich is considering development of the unused dedicated park on Allenby street to serve the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation subdivision at Lansdowne.

Now dedicated as parkland on Allenby is 4⅘ acres. It is within two blocks of the Lansdowne Field where CMHC will build 140 houses, Councillor Fleming pointed out.

"We'll develop it as soon as a local organization will take over the governing of it," he said.

He thought Saanich would probably buy extra land to enlarge the park. Purchase of park lands comes from reverted land sales.

Saanich at present is contemplating buying outright a new park site in the Doncaster-Oakcrest drive area, he said.

Enlargement of Broadmead park in the Mount Tolmie district is also in the planning stages.

Consideration will also be given to a big park in the Glanford Garden district, where, he said, there is property available.

"We are conscious of Glanford Garden being built up as a huge subdivision . . . Last year there were 106 houses built only on one sub-division and now there are two or three other sub-divisions there."

He said CMHC owned eight or 10 acres of land bounded by Bowker Creek and Newton Street that might be suitable for a park. It is in the Lansdowne sub-division, but is not divided into lots. Coun. Fleming thought it might be too low-lying for a park.

Coun. Fleming objected to criticism being leveled at the Saanich parks program.

He pointed out that Saanich has 16 active parks.

Padre Throws Book at Press

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Province in a dispatch from Nanaimo, B.C., quotes Rev. Joseph Whelley, a Roman Catholic naval padre, as saying the North American press, including Canadian daily newspapers, slants the news.

The newspaper quoted him as telling a banquet of the Catholic Women's League Wednesday that papers slanted, manipulated and dressed up the news "so that im- [illegible] Truth, Father Whelley said, can only be found in the Catholic press.

He is command padre for the RCN at Esquimalt, B.C., outside Victoria.

The story quoted him as saying "In B.C., where the Catholics are such a small minority, you can be sure the newspapers will ride roughshod over the sensibilities of Catholics.

"Senator Joseph McCarthy of the United States was 'blackballed' by Canadian and U.S. newspapers television and radio.

"The greatest faux pas in history when they censured McCarthy. Forty per cent of the total indictment was taken up with income tax evasion but the papers never mentioned it."

Island Forging Ahead

MUCH gratifying evidence of expansion and development on Vancouver Island, industrially and otherwise, has been mentioned in the news in the last few days. During the construction boom which followed the release of materials after the war there were cautious warnings that a lull and perhaps even a recession should be expected about this time. Nothing of the sort has occurred. Instead construction is proceeding from one end of the Island to the other at a faster pace than ever, far exceeding the most hopeful expectations of the early post-war period.

In Greater Victoria investment in new buildings during the first five months of this year amounts to almost double the figure for the corresponding period in 1954. In the city alone building permits have reached a total value of almost $1,000,000 a month. Such being the character of the southern Vancouver Island region, most of this construction is for domestic housing purposes, but that fact demonstrates firm belief in the ability of the metropolitan area to sustain a large population.

Elsewhere on the Island industrial expansion is the predominating influence on new construction. Behind that is the factor of availability of electric power, which more than anything else has made possible the astonishing development which the Island has seen in the last seven or eight years. Long-range plans of the B.C. Power Commission at the time of its establishment 10 years ago were thought by many to be too optimistic; yet even they failed to foresee the demands that would be made for more and more power for industry. As fast as the commission develops a new source of power, industries spring into being to snap up the output.

This is illustrated by what has occurred in connection with the new 35,000-horsepower Puntledge development which will feed additional power into the Campbell River system. The Puntledge powerhouse was officially opened by Premier Bennett yesterday. The day before the Elk Falls Company announced that its expansion program for the Duncan Bay paper mills would be increased from the original $15,000,000 to $28,500,000, thereby providing steady employment when the expansion is completed for an extra 200 men. Officials of the company said that it is the further development of hydro-electric power on the Island which has made this extension possible.

Far from having passed the peak, the economic development of the Island appears destined to go on increasing, and to be running contrary to the theory that an island territory is subject to severe limitations in this direction.

Many Would Be Interested

FROM the day the capital city grant was inaugurated, with the stated object of the improvement of the seat of government as a provincial-wide gesture, Victoria has had the opportunity to turn this provision to lasting account. If some such permanent purpose as a convention centre and auditorium were approved that would be in keeping with provincial support and would lend itself to interests far wider than beautification of the capital of British Columbia. Some 42 ridings would have an interest in the result; the province itself would have available an auditorium extensive enough to hold the largest gatherings, and industry a show place in which to demonstrate to the world the quality of B.C. products in practical use.

Take the lumber industry for one example. If imagination were used, here would be a real opportunity to demonstrate the spacious, strong, pillarless structure of which B.C. lumber is capable. Sturdy spruce from the Queen Charlotte Islands, unmatched Douglas fir in its long clear grain, incomparable finishing woods like white pine and yellow cedar, all could be employed to advantage in its construction. And what a relief that would be from the concrete and steel "jails" that industrial architecture seems to have bogged down in at present! The "story in wood" has been the one that British Columbia manufacturers have been trying to demonstrate in the United Kingdom for years. Here would be one opportunity to show B.C. products in place and functioning in a structure which tens of thousands of people would visit annually.

In keeping, again, with provincial character could be the decorations. A giant relief map of British Columbia the length of one main wall would be a potent attraction, besides commemdrating every community in the province. On another wall there could be room to display in the same graphic way the "New North" in British Columbia and the Yukon. Properly planned and worked out such an auditorium could be made a distinctive show place for all of the province, besides filling its primary functions as a convention centre with attendant amenities.

Victoria would not stand alone in such a project. If the demonstration "House of the Future" is good business and it is, what about a living structure of B.C. woods and other products with a down-to-earth, practical purpose in the life of the community? The forest products industry would certainly be interested. So would every other primary manufacturer in B.C., from aluminum to draining tile. Such an auditorium could become a permanent attraction advertising all British Columbia.

Pioneering the Sky

THIS forenoon a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane will take off from Vancouver in an inaugural flight across the polar route to Amsterdam, carrying a special party of British Columbians. It will land in the Netherlands city 18 flying hours later. Even in an aviation age that time element is notable; it means for instance that henceforth, for numerous passengers from the Pacific Northwest sure to patronize this new route on succeeding flights, Europe will be 1,000 miles closer to this area than before. It takes no imagination to realize what this reflects in terms of business and ordinary pleasure travel. Already pioneered by exploratory CPA flights, the new route is a red-letter entry in the Canadian flying log.

Actually this cross-polar aerial road to Europe, setting at naught the misleading distances of the familiar flat map, should prove decidedly attractive to trans-Atlantic travellers. At no point will the plane ever be more than 90 minutes from an emergency landing field; the maximum water span is only 600 miles; and the weather path is notably calm and clear. These are assets not lightly to be disregarded, and they inspire confidence in the success expected by CPA officials once this polar route becomes standard, everyday routine.

It is said of the British Commonwealth that the sun never sets on it, and apparently this is the goal also of Canadian Pacific Airlines. Its achievements during its short 13-year history are remarkable. With the Vancouver-Amsterdam link CPA now spreads out like a saltire from the mainland metropolis, to Honk Kong, to Sydney, to Lima, Peru, and to the Netherlands. The pioneering spirit that laid rails across the vast expanse of Canada and cemented a nation is blazing new trails through the sky. For Canada as well as CPA this new polar aerial route is something that invites quiet pride and satisfaction; it indicates that there are men in this country determined to keep it to the fore in a world which has scant room for laggards.

Reviewing the Election . . . by Giles

Interpreting the News

A Little Learning . . .

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

ALLEN Dulles, America's top intelligence man, has an interesting theory that Russia's newly improved preparatory school system, needed for the production of scientists and technicians, will eventually wreck the Soviet.

His idea is that mass education will in time produce a sufficient number of questing minds to penetrate the fog of ignorance in which the top Communist leaders attempt to keep the people, and so reveal to them the faults of their regime.

* * *

The Red regime already has acknowledged, through the greater liberty given its scientists for pure research as against the previous requirements for integrating scientific theory with ideology, that science cannot be kept under wraps.

If they ever acknowledge that economics can't either, then they will have taken a long step toward true coexistence with the rest of the world, as against the ambush which they now attempt.

There is a difference, however, between the development of questing minds against a background of deliberately supplied misinformation and the type of quest to which the world is accustomed, in which minds are handicapped only by a vacuum of knowledge.

* * *

For a social reorientation in the world, Russian thinkers will need historical truths which have not been available to them for more than a generation.

They need to know how civilized attitudes have developed, but they are denied the Bibles of all the great religions.

They need to know about democratic integration of the welfare of the state with the greatest good for the individual, something their leaders deny exists.

* * *

Dulles admits that the advance of Russian thinking toward recognition of what the rest of the world considers fundamental truths will be a great deal slower in the fields of the humanities and economics than in science where theories are more susceptible to proof. He says the prospect is sufficiently visible, however, to create a real dilemma for the Communists, who must have the scientists and technicians, must get them from a vast pot of people with broad general educations.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

CAST not the clout till May be out, quoted the lady in the coffee shop as she looked out the window at the cloudy sky, invoking the maxim of her north of England ancestors. Directed at me the advice wouldn't matter since I wear the same weight of clothes winter and summer, but oh isn't this dreary succession of springs dreadful.

Misery likes company so if I tell you it's the same across the Atlantic perhaps you will feel better. Over there calypso Jamaicans, having discovered that as a weather prophet Browning is much overrated, are leaving the tight little isle with a song, retreating as the London Times sees it from a meteorological Moscow.

And the paper, making light of distress, goes on in a manner I thought you might like to hear, thus:

A thoughtful theologian, listening in a Scottish kirk to a guest preacher, heard him describe the scene of his far-flung missionary labors as delightful, except that the people were a queer lot and the climate abominable. "Man," exclaimed the member of the congregation, "That's all that's the matter wi' hell."

And further, says the paper:

The South African cricketers. In spite of the fitful sunshine arranged for them by the MCC, may well agree with the departing Jamaicans that this, climatically, is a diabolical island. So will those many islanders who swam home in a deluge Thursday night after listening, for as long as they could take it, to the election results. An American poet, rejoicing in the name of Philander Johnson, is spokesman for us all, Jamaicans, South Africans, and ancient Britons, with

Oh, what a blamed uncertain thing
This pesky weather is!
It blew and snew and then it thew
And now, by Jings, its friz!

* * *

And how about us, in the southern end of our own tight little Vancouver Isle, from whence the chinook has departed in more ways than one. It has not frizzed, perhaps, but May is out yet for many I daresay the clout is still in.

And to think that any day now a young miss is about to dive into the frizzy waters of Juan de Fuca, if indeed she hasn't done so by the time you read this, for a cross-channel swim. Talk about casting the clout!

Cast, also, thy bread upon the waters, runs another favorite maxim — it may come back as a full loaf. Things evisioned oft arrive but in a fashion undreamed of. Long ago, some years in fact, I mused in this space about how nice it would be were the English Channel swimmers to come here and try our little strait, thinking the sun would be shining and the tourists packing the waterfront—but not dreaming they would ever follow such advice.

And lo and behold the swimmers are here but alas the sun and the thermometer are laggard and the wind is from the North Pole and soon it seems we shall be the only port in the whole wide world at which no one can arrive by boat.

What do you expect, quoth a colleague—about the weather and not the missing chinook—when someone drops a bomb that makes a hole a mile wide in the earth, condemning as you see the unseasonable custom of nuclear explosion. As to which let it be said that no authentic nuclear authority has affirmed that these diabolical explosions are not responsible for our diabolical weather.

Pesky it is you will agree as you shiver no doubt in your clout, enough in fact to make one want to clout someone's lug, which is to apply another meaning to this ancient term and one equally apposite these days. Perhaps we should appeal to the UN before our tourist trade is itself completely cast out.

Letter from London

Shopping for a New Country

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

LONDON (Air Mail)—Migration is becoming big business over here, with Britons shopping for countries with the zest of bargain hunters at a summer sale. Canada is stepping up its efforts, so doubt inspired by Mr. Pickersgill's publicly expressed regret that the number of British migrants has fallen off.

Some success has attended the announcement that more assisted passages are available. This has been especially useful in encouraging the flow of shorthand-typists, but it does not altogether overcome the main barrier to Canadian migration—the fact that in only very few cases are firm jobs offered.

Australia, for example, offers guaranteed employment on arrival in dozens of different categories as well as passages for $27 with no further obligation if the migrant stays for two years.

The new Federation of Nyassaland and Rhodesia is offering guaranteed employment and free passages. New Zealand has many categories of guaranteed employment. Apart from school teachers, skilled technicians and a few special categories, Canada does not guarantee employment.

* * *

Put that fact against English newspaper stories of 600,000 winter unemployed in Canada, letters in the press from disgruntled returned migrants—most of whom are obvious misfits—and it is not surprising that the way is tough for the Canadian government immigration service.

There is some criticism here that Canadian employers are unimaginative. They want labor but they still want to engage on the spot. This view is rather unrealistic in the present economic state of Britain, where there are many more jobs than people to fill them and social services providing many benefits not payable in Canada. It is argued that migration could be stepped up considerably if Canadian employers would send a staff manager to London to make firm engagements.

This would enable them to see the applicant, check references and capacity on the spot and make an assessment from interview as to their assimilation qualities in Canada. If the expense was not justified by any one employer it is suggested that a group of employers could appoint one man to make engagements for the group and share the expense.

* * *

Another factor which needs serious consideration in encouraging British migration is the cost of Canadian transport. At present more than 55 per cent of all British migrants go to Ontario. They are deterred from going farther west by the costs of transportation. It has been suggested that Canada, like Australia, should offer an "all in" migrant fare so that it would not cost the migrant any more to travel to Halifax or Victoria.

Another aspect of Canadian immigration policy is the system under which heads of families go first. The idea of course is that he finds the right job and suitable accommodation before sending for his wife and family—but it does not always work out that way. There is a celebrated case on the files in London of a man who went out, sent his wife pathetic stories of unemployment and hardship, explained that he could not send any money to her or get enough to return.

The irate wife went to tell the immigration people what she thought about them and Canada. Cables buzzed and a settlement officer caught up with the man. He had a good job, landed the day after he did and a wonderful affair with a Canadian girl. He was told that if he did not pull himself together the wife would be informed. Fortunately he relented—saved hard and the family were reunited within three months. But it goes to show that not all stories are what they seem to be.

The Australian government on the other hand aims at keeping the family together. They go out on the same ship. No doubt it is simpler with guaranteed employment—but it is a factor mitigating against a bigger flow of Britons to Canada.

The real point of course is that no one has to migrate these days through economic pressure, and potential migrants assess risks, prospects and costs with the zeal of an astute shopper.

The Right Kind

(From The Globe and Mail, Toronto)

IT is not of particular interest that the Immigration Department has an emergency fund, with which—among other things—to look after immigrants who cannot find work during their first year in Canada. What is of great interest is that very few calls are ever made on it. In the fiscal year 1952-53, Parliament voted $2,600,000 for this purpose, of which only $311,000 was actually spent. For 1953-54, the respective figures were $1,500,000 and $98,000. For 1954-55, they were $500,000 and $290,000. Asking Parliament to repeat its $500,000 vote for the fiscal year 1955-56, Immigration Minister Pickersgill explained:

"In spite of the long debates we have had in the House during this session on the subject of unemployment, I am pleased to be able to tell it that never at any time during the course of the whole winter have there been 400 people—men, women and children—receiving assistance at the same time from the department, although I have done my best to make it clear that any immigrant who had been in the country less than 12 months and was in need of assistance for himself and his family could receive it without the slightest risk of being considered a public charge and thereby deportable."

Immigrants, of course, are more mobile than native-born Canadians; they are not tied by sentiment or ownership to any particular community, and so can more easily go where work is available. But taking this into account, it is still remarkable that during a winter when so much was said about unemployment and hard times, fewer than 400 new arrivals—out of about 150,000—at any one time needed help.

It is plain that Mr. Pickersgill's department is getting Canada the right kind of people—industrious, enterprising and adaptable. We only wish it were getting more of them.

They Want a Change

WITH a very few exceptions (Quebec City, for instance, and Victoria, B.C.) what does the average Canadian community offer the visitor?

Answer: Old Glory, Southern fried chicken, Virginia ham and (this year) the late Mr. David Crockett.

Couldn't it be—just possibly, maybe, perhaps—that Americans going abroad on holiday might prefer to feel that they really were in a different country, with a "foreign" flag over the hotel canopy instead of their own; with habitant pea soup on the menu instead of New England clam chowder (imported in the can); with something about the Heroes of the Long Sault on the juke box instead of a perpetual eulogy of one of their own Heroes of the Alamo; and with maybe a voyageur's ceinture flechee in the store window for their kids to buy, instead of a coonskin cap (imported, customed and sales-taxed) that they could get more cheaply at home?

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

WITH 75 miles to drive, I turned in on the two-lane highway and joined the practically solid week-end procession homeward. The average speed of the traffic would be near 50 miles an hour, despite its density, with occasional elderly or new or rebellious drivers taking their time around 40, and, of course, the usual ambitious characters trying to go 60 every chance they got to cut ahead.

It was not easy to cut out around anyone ahead, because there was a fairly busy upstream traffic. But every time a gap did occur, half a dozen cars would immediately step out of line and speed ahead, despite the fact that there really was no room for them in the procession. And when an upcoming car forced them back into line, there was the usual backing and filling in the procession until the ambitious ones were kindly accommodated.

They may have gained four or five car lengths in each of these most disturbing enterprises, creating nerve strain, anger and distress to maybe two dozen of their fellow-motorists each time they cut out. But I very much doubt if, in the whole 75 miles, they gained even 25 car lengths. And there can be no doubt they gained not five minutes in time because the slow-down of the whole procession they created, each time they cut out, more than discounted any gain in time they imagined they were achieving.

At about the 40-mile distance from home a car swooshed past me and then rammed his nose in front of me, forcing me to brake hard in order to let him back in line, barely in time to avoid a head-on collision with a car coming fast in the opposite direction. I heard the squeal of the brakes of the other cars behind me, as they too were involved in the incident. The driver was a middle-aged, prosperous type—no doubt a forceful executive, eh? Not five minutes later, he made another wild jump out of line, and then scrambled back, again just in time to avoid a collision.

I kept my eye on him the remainder of the 40 miles home. He never cut out again. But he had gained two car lengths by sheer greed and folly. That seems to be all he wanted. Just a little profit. Two car lengths. Is this what business enterprise may have done to our characters?

Letters to the Editor

In Appreciation

I wish to thank the large number of Central Saanich residents who were kind enough to subscribe the total cost of the reception and the beautiful gifts which were given to my wife and myself last week. The balance of the subscribed funds is being turned over to the Cerebral Palsy Association for crippled children.

I also wish to thank the committee of Central Saanich ratepayers and their helpers who made the reception and entertainment possible.

The expressions of appreciation and kindness which my wife and I have received will always be remembered by us.

As it is impossible to reply individually to all who have taken part in the reception and presentation and those who have signed their endorsement of the scroll which was presented to me with the engraved watch, and the leather letter case for my wife, I would be obliged if you could find space in your paper to publish this letter expressing our appreciation.

Political Views

I note in the Colonist of May 31, under the caption, "New PUC Member Needn't Be Scored," that Premier Bennett is reported as having said that the successor to Russell E. Potter of the Public Utilities Commission need not be a member of the so-called "Social Credit" party; and continued that the new members of B.C. Power Commission were not members of that party "or even a former Tory."

We, the normal citizens of British Columbia, who have had to look on as the funny claims concerning the Kaiser Dam have been spread, and have noted by the press that parts of the location of the projected PGE have been resurveyed at unecessary expense to the province, cannot help but wonder why a busy premier should take time to find out the political views of able prospective civil servants. It sounds bad!

We are convinced that (1) If the members of the cabinet had consulted their experienced deputies and experts before making commitments and public statements and (2) If they had not contrived to lose so many of them and members of the Power Commission, of the Water Rights Board and engineers—there would have been fewer statements such as that attributed to one minister: "If they will not take our gas they can't have our water."

It is quite possible that if the pre-Socred plans had been consulted there would not have been the long delay in bringing the Peace River gas to the Pacific Coast. The delay is supposed to have caused a loss to the province of more than $1,000,000 per annum.

We believe also that the engineers could have saved [illegible] all the foolishness of the Kaiser Dam controversy and the international feeling which the matter has engendered.

Humane Trap

A good deal has been heard lately about the suffering that is inflicted on fur-bearing animals when trapped by the present trapping method that is, the steel leghold trap.

This trap clamps on the animal's paw, and the more it struggles the more crushed the paw becomes. On long traplines the suffering of these animals is beyond description.

Those who have been concerned about this matter will be glad to know that at last a humane trap has been invented: one that kills the animals instantly and that will be able to compete with the steel trap in every way.

This trap, sponsored by our association, was invented by a Victoria man, Mr. Frank Conibear, and when it is in production, there will be no need for the prolonged and horrible suffering now endured by animals in the trapping season, nor for the unhappiness some of us feel so deeply when the trapping season opens each year.

N. E. WEBSTER,
Hon. Secretary, Association for Protection of Fur-bearing Animals, Box 274, Vancouver, B.C.

School Registrations Lagging For September Beginners

Registration of beginners entering primary grade in Greater Victoria schools in September has reached a total of 1,607, Josn Gough, senior municipal inspector of schools, said yesterday.

Mr. Gough said that this was about 100 fewer than the number now attending grade 1. It is expected that more parents will register their children during the next few days.

School authorities said before registration began they expected about 1,800 beginners to be registered in Greater Victoria.

"A survey of returns from principals discloses increasing enrollments of grade 1 pupils, particularly compared to a year ago, at View Royal, McKenzie Avenue, Tillicum, Doncaster, Margaret Jenkins, Monterey, Bank street and Oak Bay Elementary."

Mr. Gough said officials working on organization of classes for next year anticipated that it would be necessary to transfer a number of children to other schools in order to use all classroom space to the best advantage.

"Further," he said, "it appears that the shift system must be continued at most schools where it is now in operation."

School authorities expect, however, that 10 room additions at Oaklands and Willows will be ready by next January, and will relieve some of the crowding at that time.

Children who have been going to school on the shift system this year are not expected to face the same situation in the fall. They will graduate to regular hours, while other children take their places in shift classes.

Mr. Gough said steps were being taken to develop a primary unit on the Lansdowne Junior High school site, near Forrester and Richmond, for children in grades 1 to 3, now attending Oaklands, Willows and Doncaster.

Two annexes from Oaklands, and two from Willows, are to be moved to the Lansdowne site during the summer to form the new school, he said.

Civil Defence To Get Nation-Wide Publicity

The federal government is apparently going to step up its civil defence public relations program in the near future, Maj.-Gen. C. R. Stein, provincial civil defence co-ordinator, said last night.

Asked to comment on the request of the Greater Victoria Civil Defence Control Board for more publicity, Maj.-Gen. Stein said "there have been indications" that early action can be expected from Ottawa.

"An increase in public relations has been stressed by representatives of all provinces at meetings in Ottawa," he said.

Although details of the stepped-up federal program were not known, Maj.-Gen. Stein presumed that federal officials will "tell the people what to do and tie it in with developments of their own plans."

It was indicated that all "media of approach," newspapers, radio and television, will be included.

ALL FOR SUGGESTIONS

Referring to the Greater Victoria request, the co-ordinator said: "We are all for any suggestion we get from anyone interested in the development of civil defence—and we will give every possible consideration to it."

He said it would be preferable to tie in any publicity campaign here with the new federal program.

Coun. S. W. Brock of Saanich advanced the publicity suggestion this week as the board indicated it will set down a Greater Victoria civil defence policy soon. He said yesterday his idea was "simple, elementary instructions which are well written—something that will have a punch."

Newspaper advertisements should be headed "What to do in case of . . ." he said.

Councillor Brock said these advertisements will be "the cheapest form of education in the end."

Saanich To Act

Warnings, followed by prosecutions, will be given some 60 Saanich businesses delinquent in trade licences, municipal licence inspector Roy H. Wootten said yesterday.

Some have failed to obtain a licence since the business year began January 15, he said. Licences are issued for six-month periods.

Persons convicted are subject to a fine plus the cost of a licence. The fine is dependent on the circumstances.

Joseph Hibberson Retires

Ad Foreman Ends 44-Year Job

Joseph Hibberson put down his pencil yesterday and retired after 44 years with The Daily Colonist, 40 of them as ad foreman.

His employers at Victoria Press Ltd. yesterday described him as "faithful and well liked by everyone on the staff" and a man who will be missed.

In ill-health for several months, Mr. Hibberson now plans to concentrate on his garden at 1513 Amphion street, and "maybe play a little golf."

Now 67 years old, he was born in St. Anne's-on-Sea, Lancs., England, and came to Canada and the Colonist in 1911.

He started as a compositor in ad alley and had been there until yesterday.

When he came to Canada, he followed his favorite pastime, billiards, and played for various teams in the city.

Later, he took up golf and taught his wife and two sons, Leonard and Eric, to play the game.

Eric and Mrs. Hibberson became champions, the former winning the Vancouver Island Open twice.

PTA Enjoys Club's Visit

JORDAN RIVER — The Jordan River PTA held a social evening when some 30 members of the B.C. Electric Glee Club, Victoria, entertained with a varied program of songs.

Pictures were shown by Austin Goward, BCE public relations department. Alan Husband sang several solos, accompanied by Jack Fraser.

Refreshments were served by members of the PTA and Mrs. J. Reeves, president, thanked the visitors.

Legion Meeting Set

Regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward branch of the Canadian Legion will be held at 8 p.m. Monday at the Legion hall, Dunford road, Langford.

Eat Your Troubles Away

Simple Tricks Big Help In Relaxing

Those who are undernourished and don't realize it will find a guide to better health and greater vigor in "Eat Your Troubles Away," latest work by Lelord Kordel, researcher and lecturer on nutrition, appearing serially in The Daily Colonist.

BY LELORD KORDEL

Were relaxation a simple process, I would not take so much time to point out the causes of tension and the methods by which you can overcome them.

You have to muster all the forces of your "triangle of health" — body, mind and emotions — to overcome tension.

Nutritionally you must be strong. Proteins from meat, fish, eggs, cheese, and other dairy products will restore your billions of body cells to normal activity, to give you strength and stamina. Vitamins of the B-complex group will assist your body in digesting that food and using it wisely. Large quantities of these substances are sometimes difficult to secure in today's devitalized foods. It is for that reason I recommend that everybody use a reliable, high potency vitamin and mineral supplement.

One way to relax is to wilt in easy steps—first, letting arms droop, then head, followed by relaxation of the upper torso until you fall to a sitting position. From this sitting position flop down to complete rest. Try this tonight when you are ready for sleep.

Another method of achieving relaxation is to locate the tension in your muscles and correct it. Consciously tense that particular muscle — the frown wrinkles in your forehead, for example—then let go. Next tense your jaw and let go. It is with your jaw that you grit your teeth in rage, or clench them in determination. Tense your hands, then let them relax.

Are you living as if you were expecting a blow in the stomach with your subconscious making your abdominal muscles constantly on the defensive?

Breathe deeply from your abdomen. As the diaphragm smoothly contracts and lets go, this gentle massage is applied to the entire abdominal

Break the Chain

If we cannot relieve stress we must at least break it somewhere in the chain, for only leisure can rehabilitate the overstressed mechanism of the mind.

Mere idleness is not the answer. Men need hobbies — the kind of leisure in this machine-age civilization that makes some call on their intelligence and restores their self-respect so they can be transformed from cogs in a machine to men among men.

If you can't get away, there is nothing like an errand in sunshine and fresh air to break the tension. Even looking out of a window helps you gain perspective, and the four walls no longer seem to hem you in with your difficulty.

It is the person who works the easiest that accomplishes the most in the shortest time. His work shows skill. Liking your work is a big factor in efficiency. You don't want to spend half your energy fighting your job.

Do not let the size of the work pile bother you, because you can do your work only "one by one." If you are not successful in your attempt to put "mind over matter," put the stack out of sight and reach for each piece as its turn comes. Your steady pace and consistent speed will take the pile down much faster than you figured.

Of course your attitude in approaching a task is important. If you think your job is going to be hard, it may be just that. It is much better for your tensions to think that it might be easy.

Relaxation can also be yours . . . do you want it badly enough to go after it —or do you expect it to fall into your lap?

Realtors Urged To Win Friends Through Community Service

Members of the Real Estate Board of Victoria were urged yesterday to play their full part in community service to the city as a means of winning goodwill.

The advice was given by Philip Seagrove of Hamilton, Ont., executive of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, and chairman of the association's co-operative listing committee.

"You don't require anyone from outside to clean the business up," he said. "You can do it yourselves."

Mr. Seagrove said in many Canadian cities the co-operative or multiple listing system was so successful that people in the real estate business were clamoring to join.

SET OWN STANDARDS

When this happened, added Mr. Seagrove, it was possible for the real estate people themselves to set up their own standards and discipline those who did not conform in a democratic way.

Mr. Seagrove said the main trouble was that many real estate firms were willing to hire anyone, and they sent inexperienced people out on the job in the hope of doing extra business.

"We should adopt a more professional attitude in our business," he urged. He decried the policy of bringing in retired bankers and policemen on pension and "allowing them to try to run our business."

He suggested that a real estate board was a logical group to take an active interest in town planning.

LEND OUR AID

"We know about real estate and we ought to be able to do a service to the community by lending our aid in the orderly development of our areas," he said.

"We should give service just like a chamber of commerce does."

After his talk, Mr. Seagrove was bombarded by questions from nearly 100 members of the Real Estate Board of Victoria—the largest gathering on record.

Mr. Seagrove did not agree that the 7 per cent commission charged on sales made through multiple listing was too high. He explained that although the commission in the East was only 5 per cent, the legal work was not done by realtors.

SUNDAY CLOSING

In reply to a question regarding the practice in Victoria of not opening properties for inspection on Sundays, Mr. Seagrove said he was not in favor of working on the Sabbath.

One member said that man and wife had to be present to make a sale and that it was a question of working either at night or on Sundays.

Mr. Seagrove said it was up to each person's conscience, "but I for one do not want to work on Sundays. I prefer to go to church and be with my family."

City School Head Honored By Colleagues

H. L. Smith, retiring principal of Victoria High school, was honored at a dinner of the principals' association of Greater Victoria at the Pacific Club Wednesday.

Fifty-two principals and vice-principals, in addition to several retired principals and guests, attended the gathering. Walter J. Kitley was chairman.

On behalf of the group, Walter Brynjolfson presented Mr. Smith with a set of luggage and spoke of the outstanding contribution he had made to the education of the youth of the community.

Victoria's Oldest Established Furniture Store Re-opens in New Location

The firm of Champion's Limited, well known to Victorians for many years, now makes its home in a familiar downtown location—Fort at Quadra in the building which for many years was known as the Pantorium Building.

"Hap" and Bill Champion, co-owners of the firm, purchased the building and in recent months have made extensive changes in its interior. The space has been remodelled to create attractive display areas and allows for large window displays both on Fort and Quadra Streets.

A complete redecorating job changes this familiar landmark into a brightly modern furniture store which has been the aim of Champion's for many years. They now have the adequate accommodation they have always looked forward to having for the display of their many furniture lines.

Pioneers in the furniture business in this city, the original firm was known as Smith & Champion, and was located on Douglas Street. Later, the firm became Champion's Limited and moved to their recent location on Fort. The third and final move, after 56 years of serving thousands of families in the Vancouver Island area, climaxes the firm's growth and expansion.

SHELL
It takes TCP to get the full power from High Octane Gasoline

Cars being made today are the most powerful ever built. And with this extra power you also get extra economy—more miles per gallon.

The reason for these benefits is that today's engines are high compression engines and make more complete use of the power available in today's higher octane gasolines.

But did you know that the kind of driving most people do most of the time—local driving—can, in a short time, create a condition that offsets the extra power and economy that these engines should get from high octane gasoline.

Why? Because this kind of driving increases the build-up of certain combustion chamber deposits—the root of most power and gasoline waste. And to overcome these deposits you need a gasoline with a special kind of additive.

What happens is this:

As your engine warms up, these deposits warm up, too—glow red hot. And these glowing particles act like hot coals—ignite the gasoline mixture ahead of time . . . before the pistons reach proper firing position. This is called pre-firing and means that power works against you instead of for you.

In addition, these same deposits have another power-wasting effect: They foul spark plugs, causing your engine to miss.

Engineers will tell you there's nothing more wasteful of power and gasoline than pre-firing and spark plug "miss."

But there is an answer—there's one high octane gasoline that gives you all the advantages of high octane without the power-crippling effects of these deposits—Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP*.

TCP, the Shell-developed additive, fireproofs the deposits so that they no longer cause pre-firing. No longer can they glow red hot and ignite the gasoline mixture. And TCP stops spark plug "miss," too. Your spark plugs do the job they are supposed to do.

Start getting the full power built into your engine. Get Shell Premium with TCP. It's the most powerful gasoline your car can use!

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

SHELL
Only Shell Premium Gasoline has both TCP and High Octane!

NATIONAL PASTIME: Anyway you look at it, in the number of participants or in the amount of money spent for equipment, hunting and fishing outranks all other sports.

Many sets of figures have been used from time to time to prove this beyond an doubt. The latest to come to this desk passed along by Dave Turner, were used recently by sportscaster Bill Stern.

According to Stern, approximately 18,000,000 people attended baseball games in the U.S. in 1953. Rodeos, surprisingly, no doubt, to most of us, drew an attendance of about 20,000,000 and about 30,000,000 persons turned out for horse racing. By comparison, 32,000,000 hunting and fishing licences were sold, an estimated 4,000,000 anglers didn't require licenses because they fished exclusively in salt water, and about 3,000,000 persons were given free hunting and fishing privileges by the various states.

And it wasn't even close when it came to the matter of equipment. About $35,000,000 was spent for baseball equipment and golfers put out $80,000,000. That's a lot of money, but a phenomenal $6,000,000,000 (yes, six billion dollars) was spent on hunting and fishing equipment.

No wonder Stern remarked: "Baseball the national pastime? Don't you believe it. America's leading sport is hunting and fishing."

FIRST NAVY DERBY: First 1955 one-day derby for members of the Royal Canadian Navy Anglers Association will be held in Saanich Inlet Sunday. Prizes range from a set of dishes to two Macs Squid plugs and weighing-in stations are Hall's boathouse at the Goldstream end of the Inlet, the Anchorage boathouse at Brentwood and Holder's boathouse at Deep Cove.

Rules are simple: membership in the RCNAA is required and only entrants are permitted to fish from their boats; only one prize to a contestant; salmon must be weighed in in the round; each entrant allowed only rod; fishing starts at 5 a.m. and fish must be on the wharf at whatever weighing-in station selected by 4 p.m.; in case of identical weights for prize-winning fish, the fish weighed in the earliest shall be awarded the higher prize.

* * *

SURPRISE WINNER SURPRISED: Fishing wasn't too good in Saanich Inlet Sunday, particularly for those who competed in the Colonist salmon derby. It's rumored that two bluebacks were actually caught by contestants but evidence is largely circumstantial.

Bill Galt, who manfully got the best of his "catch" when his flasher somehow got hooked up crosswise on his line and gave him a stern tussle, looked a bit amazed when informed he had earlier boated a small fish and had won first prize of a glass coho rod. He accepted it but hasn't done any gloating. Understandably.

If a second fish was caught, no one claimed the runner-up prize of rod and reel. A draw was made among staff members who are just starting the costly process of acquiring fishing tackle and Bill Mavor was the lucky winner.

* * *

DECISION NEXT WEEK: The Cowichan Bay Salmon Club, which polled members some weeks ago about whether or not the club should end its restrictions on the use of bait, will make its decision at a meeting next week. It's reported that about 100 members returned cards and that there was a small majority in favor of ending the ban on bait.

Just what will be decided is not yet certain, however, but it appears likely that the club will permit members to use strip while fishing for spring salmon and retain present restrictions on coho. That, in this book, would be a reasonable compromise.

It was also learned yesterday that the CBSC, which first originated the popular ladder derby, may stage a spring salmon ladder derby this year. The ladder derby was discontinued after the 1952 event, although a week-end ladder-type derby was held in 1953, at the suggestion of fisheries officials.

* * *

BOTTOM COMPARTMENT: Best fishing in Saanich Inlet has been at the Goldstream end during the past few days, and it picked up slightly yesterday with some fair catches of blues and jacksprings between three and six pounds . . . Macs Squid plugs and Tom Mack spoons, the latter for blues, have been the best lures according to reports from Hall's boathouse . . . Andy Anderson, who was immediate past-president, and Ray Ritchie, who was chairman of the finance committee, are no longer members of the Chinook Club. Both refused to reconsider earlier resignations at a meeting last night and they were accepted by club officials . . . Dick Williams has disposed of his fishing camp at Sandy Beach and it will again be known as Francis' Camp. The new owner is A. G. Raue and boat and cabin reservations can now be made by telephone. The number is Cobble Hill 92Y4. Cowichan Lake is still yielding some good-sized trout. Police Chief John Blackstock is reported to have boated one about five pounds and Fred Dodsworth picked up a five-pound cutthroat last Saturday . . . Richard Fisher, Vancouver, got more than he bargained for when he netted a fish in Cowichan Lake Sunday. Attached to his trout was one of those indescribably ugly lampreys . . . Fishing with Fisher was six-year-old Mark Buller, who pulled in his first trout. His first thought was "to get his name in the paper." There you are, Mark. May your lines be often tight.

American golfers, who recently scored their 14th Walker Cup triumph over England at St. Andrews, Scotland, watch Dick Yost during a practice session for British amateur championship at St. Annes. Pictured, left to right, as the Seattle divoter belts one off a tee are Joe Conrad, Harvie Ward, Don Cherry, Bruce Cudd, Billy Joe Patton, Jim Jackson and Dale Morey. Conrad and Patton were the only U.S. Walker cuppers to advance into today's quarter-finals and were joined by Don Bisplinghoff of Orlando, Fla., who gained the quarters by ousting Cudd of Portland, 4 and 2.

Brooklyn continued to bombard the rest of the National League with its powerful attack Thursday, scoring 10 runs in the eighth inning while crushing Milwaukee 13-2.

Johnny Antonelli got New York Giants back on the winning path by subduing Cincinnati with six hits 8-3, his eighth straight over the Redlegs since he was traded by Milwaukee. Homers by Willie Mays and Don Mueller helped him on the way. Ted Kluszewski hit his 15th homer for the Redlegs.

Frank Thomas and Dale Long homered in a 17 - hit Pittsburgh barrage for a 12-3 romp over St. Louis Cardinals while Max Surkont went the distance to beat Harvey Haddix.

Herb Score regained the major league strikeout lead by whiffing 10 Baltimore Orioles for a season total of 92, as Cleveland pounded out a 9-3 margin. Score shut out the Orioles on two hits until the eighth, and had struck out 10 in the first four innings. He cooled off in the late frames but had no trouble winning his sixth.

KALINE LEADS

Al Kaline took over the American League batting lead with a triple and two singles for a .382 average, three points more than his injured teammate, Harvey Kuenn, while Detroit edged Washington 4-3. Winner Steve Gromek left the mound in the eighth because of recurrence of a back injury that sidelined him for a week.

Chicago defeated Boston Red Sox 4-2 with the help of a seventh-inning double play with the bases loaded. Virgil Trucks won his fifth with the assistance of Sandy Consuegra.

Ted Williams, hitless Wednesday, was blanked again in three official trips although he walked twice. Mel Parnell, making his first start of the year, was the loser. Parnell hadn't pitched since March 31 when he injured his right knee in spring training.

Duke Snider hit his 16th homer for the Dodgers, long before their big inning. Billy Loes allowed only six hits, including homers by pinchhitter Eddie Mathews and Johnny Logan.

Fifteen Dodgers went to bat in the eighth for nine hits and three walks. Dave Jolly, Roberto Vargas and finally John Edelman, a bonus pitcher who just joined the club Thursday, labored manfully before the Brooks finally went out. Starter Bob Buhl was lifted for pinchhitter Mathews after pitching seven innings.

The resurgent Philadelphia Phillies chalked up their 10th victory in their last 12 games, defeating Chicago Cubs 8-4 in a night game. Andy Seminick started the Phils on their way with a grand slam homer in the first inning. The Cubs got two of their tallies on Ernie Bank's seventh-inning homer.

Glen Gorbous, rightfielder for the Phils who hails from Alberta, got three hits in four at bats.

New York Yankees rang up their 19th victory in their last 22 games with a 12-6 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics in a night game.

Pools to Trout Flies In Sportsmen's Show

Merchandise exhibits at the Western Canadian Sportsmen's Show at Memorial Arena June 14-18, will include almost everything in the way of outdoors equipment, ranging from a full-sized swimming pool to sports cars, from boat paint to rifles, from boat motors to athletic uniforms and tents.

Displays of outdoors equipment are an integral part of every sportsmen's show and create as much interest among patrons as the show itself, which, in this case, is the best to appear here.

City merchants have been taking advantage of the opportunity to display their wares before people who are primarily interested in outdoors recreation of one sort or another, and space has been selling steadily to ensure a great variety of outdoors equipment.

Fishing tackle, of course, will provide some top-notch displays. One merchant, who specializes in fly-fishing gear, plans to tie flies in his booth. Two city manufacturers will feature their products, and there will be the latest in rods, reels, lines and lures.

Other city sporting goods dealers will feature uniforms and golf equipment, bicycles, motorcycles, outboard motors, boats, tents and camping needs and rifles.

Certain to prove of interest is something new in a show display, a plastic swimming pool which can be installed in a back yard for a fraction of the usual cost for this sign of affluence.

In addition to the displays, there is the trout pool, where anglers can fish for trout worth up to $50 each and help a good cause at the same time. All proceeds from the pool go to the Cerebral Palsy Association.

Then there is the show itself, more than 90 minutes of fast-paced action and entertainment featuring some of the best-known acts in shows of this kind.

Bruin Chiefs Silent On Sawchuk Deal

Boston Bruin officials refuse to comment on a report Thursday night that the Bruins are about to acquire goalie Terry Sawchuk from Detroit, but there is speculation that the Red Wings will announce shortly a successor to the National Hockey League's top netminder last season.

"No comment" was all Bruin coach Milt Schmidt had to say to a report carried Thursday in the Toronto Star that Sawchuk was on his way to Boston and that the Red Wings would bring up Glenn Hall from their Edmonton farm in the Western Hockey League.

Rookie Johnny Henderson and veteran Jim Henry handled the Boston netminding last season, letting in a combined average of 2.68 goals a game compared with Sawchuk's average of 1.91. Earlier last season, Hall replaced Sawchuk for two games after the regular goalie had allowed eight goals in a single game.

Another goalie in the news yesterday was big Lucien Dechene of New Westminster Royals, who has been purchased by the new Regina entry in the Western Hockey League . . . Hank Ciesla, leading scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" league last season, has been sold to Chicago Black Hawks for $15,000 by Montreal Canadiens . . . Baseball's hardy perennial, Satchel Paige, is back on the payroll. The great Negro righthander, who was released by Baltimore last season, has been signed by Kansas City Monarchs of the Negro American League for an estimated $40,000.

Harry Matthews of Seattle, who has lost three times to heavyweight challenger Don Cockell of England, has decided to come out of retirement June 17 for a bout in Boise with an as yet unnamed opponent because he saw the pictures of the recent Cockell-Marciano fight and decided that the champion is slipping . . . Vancouver featherweight Lennie Walters has been promised an out-door, non-title bout with world bantam weight champion Raton Macias late in July in Seattle's Sick's Stadium.

Kimberley Dynamiters, former Allan Cup and world hockey champions, have quit the Western International Hockey League because of financial problems . . . Apprentice jockey Freddie Longo, 25, was in a Vancouver hospital with a skull fracture after being kicked by a horse he was exercising at Landsdowne Park yesterday . . . Joe Stydahar was fired as head coach of the professional football Chicago Cardinals yesterday and the job was handed to line coach Ray Richards . . . Kansas City Athletics have averaged 21,026 fans for their first 19 home games and the Kansas City attendance of 399,515 is almost 95,000 more than the club drew last year when it played out of Philadelphia.

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — New Westminster Salmonbellies extended their losing streak to three Thursday night when they went under 9-6 to the Mount Pleasant Indians during an Inter-city Lacrosse League tilt.

At the end of the game, a disgruntled Art Pruden announced he may leave his job as coach and join the fighting staff of his ineffective Salmonbellies. The next game, he said, will be the deciding factor.

They play next Thursday, hosting the Victoria Shamrocks.

Indian coach Jake Proctor was playing Thursday, and provided some of the game's exciting moments for the 1,000 fans.

Twice Proctor scored on floor-length rushes, bealing his way through a loosely-knit New Westminster defence.

The win moved the Indians into a three-way tie for second place, sharing the spotlight with Nanaimo and the Vancouver Pilseners.

Pruden has scheduled three stiff workouts before his crew goes against the Rocks in an effort to pull them out of the slump that is pulling them deeper into the league basement.

Farmer Construction posted its fifth straight victory of the Lower Island Senior Amateur Baseball League season by scoring a 6-4 triumph at Duncan last night to boost its lead over the runner-up Duncan club to three full games.

At Royal Athletic park, Eagles and Capitals battled to a 7-7 deadlock in a game called after six innings because of darkness. The game is expected to be re-played.

Eagles got away to a 2-0 lead in the top half of the first inning but the Capitals came back with a five-run surge in the bottmo half of the inning, scoring their tallies on three hits and three Eagle errors.

Eagles went in front, 7-5, with a five-run uprising in the second frame, featured by Dez Mosely's three-run double.

The Vets will be seeking first place when they meet Sidney in two games at Sidney Sunday. In other action Sunday, Pages will host Duncan in a double-header at Macdonald Park.

Derby Sees Weigh-In Of First Button Fish

Boating the first button fish of the 1955 ladder derby, Mrs. Frances Gunn grabbed the top rung in the first week of qualifying fishing yesterday.

Mrs. Gunn used a Strip-Teaser to lure a 21¾-pound spring salmon to her hook and pulled her prize out of the waters of Misery bay. She was using 200 feet of line and a pound of weight and not only made certain of qualifying for the main fish-off but also won for herself a bronze button.

Taking the second rung yesterday was W. Heath, who also found a Strip-Teaser the right equipment as he boated a 15-pound, nine-ounce salmon. He made his catch near Chesterfield rock, also at the Goldstream end.

J. R. Ireland caught yesterday's other big one while fishing out of Brentwood. His 15-pound, one-ounce spring gave him the third rung.

Fishing picked up yesterday as 13 anglers weighed in salmon to bring to 40 the number of rungs claimed in the first qualifying week, which ends Sunday night.

Fifty anglers will qualify in each of 10 qualifying weeks for the main fish-off. However, every angler who weighs in a fish automatically qualifies for one of two fish-offs. Those who fail to stay on the weekly ladders will fish this year in a "Duffers' Derby" which has a separate prize list worth $1,500.

Last night's score: Optimists 14, Menzies Fuel 8.

Next game, tonight: Tillicums vs. McCall-Davey, Macdonald park, 6.30 p.m.

Optimists moved out of the basement and took over fourth place in the six-team Babe Ruth baseball league in the right by routing Menzies Fuel, 14-8, at Beacon Hill park behind the steady pitching of George Brice and Daryl Lorimer.

Brice retired the side in order in his five-inning stint before being forced to retire with a wrenched back. Lynn Mather touched Brice for a scratch single in the third inning but he was thrown out trying to move to second on a passed ball.

McCall-Davey, leading the league with six victories in seven starts, were awarded a victory in a game played Tuesday by a ruling passed in Vancouver yesterday. The Druggists were leading UCT, 15-3, after five innings when the game was suspended because of darkness.

Young Rocks Clip Cafemen

Strathcona Cafe dropped its third straight decision to the powerful Oak Bay Shamrocks in juvenile "B" lacrosse league action last night but Tommy Druce's squad put up a good battle before bowing 11-7 at Carnarvon park.

Jack Showers, who scored 18 goals in the first two games for Dave Unwin's Shamrocks, was held to three markers by the improved Strathcona Cafe team, which had Tommy Druce at the helm for the first time this season.

The clubs will meet again Saturday afternoon at the Carnarvon park box at 2 p.m.

Scorers:

Shamrocks—Jack Showers 3, Randy Caldwell 2, Beedie Johnson, Ken Sinnett, Dick Austin 2, Ron Barrieau, Jack Wilson. Total 11.

Strathcona Cafe—Tom Collett 2, Al Haynes 2, Al Kadris 1, Bob Craindallie 1, Jim Galbraith 1, Totall 7.

S. J. Willis Track Leader

S. J. Willis junior high school will carry an 11½-point lead into the final day of the first annual junior inter-high school track and field meet today at Lansdowne junior high school.

S. J. Willis athletes piled up 50½ points in field event finals held earlier this week and Central junior high holds down second place with 39 points. Lansdowne junior high is third with 28 points and Oak Bay junior trails with 26½ points.

Eleven track events will be run off today with the first event at 1.30 p.m.

Jokers Earn 4-4 Saw-Off Against Navy

HOW THEY STAND

	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Foul Bay	3	0	0	31	10	6
Junior Shamrocks	2	1	0	20	14	4
Jokers	0	2	1	11	25	1
Navy	0	2	1	11	30	1

Last night's score: Jokers 4, Navy 4.

A goal late in the fourth quarter earned Jokers a 4-4 tie with Navy in a senior "B" lacrosse league game at Stevenson park last night.

Paced by Paul LaPointe, who scored two goals, the Sailors held a 1-0 lead after the first period and scored the only goal of the second frame. Navy, which turned in a much-improved effort under the coaching of Nip O'Hearn, carried a 3-2 edge into the final session but couldn't hold the lead.

Moose Johnson, Roy Lawrence, Vic Gallop and Wilf Scott were the Joker marksmen.

Opponents Score On Foul Shot

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — Manuel Chivo Andrade, an outstanding soccer player, was shot dead in a bar Wednesday night while drinking with friends. Police are investigating the possibility he was murdered to cripple his team for Sunday's national title game.

Andrade was the star left-inside on the communication ministery's team, which can win the Guatemalan crown Sunday by defeating the Central American Railroad outfit.

The athlete was sitting with friends in the bar when two unidentified men walked in and

Husky 21-Pounder In Colonist's Contest

A woman angler showed yesterday that members of the fair sex are going to be hard to beat in The Daily Colonist's "King Fisherman" contest.

Mrs. Frances Gunn, 1292 Duncan, entered the contest in its second day, weighing in a 21-pound, 12-ounce spring.

[illegible] Gail Heath, 444 Ker, with a spring tipping the scales at 15 pounds, nine ounces. Don Gunn, 1292 Denman, caught a seven-pounder. Others weighing in fish were S. W. Fendlay, 902 Forshaw, six pounds, once ounce; F. Plaxton, 117 Yates, six pounds, four ounces; G. B. Williams, 4321 Tyndall, six pounds, seven ounces.

Full reports from official contest weigh-in stations on the Island are expected to reach the Colonist today.

The contest offers trophies for fish caught in four categories: trout, tyee, coho and spring.

Individuals catching the biggest fish in each division will win "King Fisherman" trophies and $50 cash prizes in addition if they happen to be Colonist subscribers.

All trout two pounds and over and all salmon five pounds and over caught by Colonist subscribers are eligible for a $50 cash prize in each division in hidden weight draws.

The contest ends October 31.

New president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is Jimmy Dunn of Winnipeg, who was elected to the position at the association's annual meeting in Regina last week. Dunn succeeds W. B. (Baldy) George of Kemptville, Ontario.

Three U.S. Golfers Remain In British Amateur Tourney

ST. ANNES, England (UP)— Don Bisplinghoff, Billy Joe Patton and Lieut. Joe Conrad gave the United States three quarter-final berths yesterday in the British amateur golf championship by scoring fourth and fifth round triumphs.

Bisplinghoff, a husky 20-year-old from Orlando Fla., rallied to defeat John Niven of England, two up, and then shot one of the best rounds of the tournament to oust 21-year-old Bruce Cudd of Portland, Ore., after lunch, 4 and 2.

Patton, the bespectacled wholesale lumber dealer from Morganton, N.C., coasted to a 5 and 4 morning victory over England's Jackie Jones and had almost as easy a task ousting George Coleman of Miami, Okla., in the fifth round. The score was 5 and 3.

Conrad, a 25-year-old air force officer from San Antonio, Tex., defeated fellow Walker cupper Jim Jackson of Glendale, Mo., one up. Before lunch, Conrad ousted George Duncan of Wales, 5 and 3, while Jackson beat Derek Gardner of England, 4 and 3.

LAST SURVIVORS

The three were the only survivors of the 46 Americans who began play in the six-day match play grind on Monday. Nine of 11 U.S. players survived yesterday's morning round but six of them were knocked out by their own teammates or by English opponents in the afternoon as the sky clouded up and rain fell.

Jim McHale of Wynnewood, Pa., ousted Dick de Lloyd of Wales this morning but bowed to Alan Slater of England this afternoon, one up. Barton Bridgeford, the 65-year-old ex-San Francisco resident who now lives in Paris, entered the fifth round by defeating Eric Fiddian of England, one up. But Roger Blaylis of England ousted Bridgeford after lunch, 7 and 6.

Cpl. James Bernard of Westboro, Mass., bowed to Arthur Perowne of England, 6 and 4, after ousting John de Bendern of Scotland, 3 and 2.

Joe Carr of Ireland, the 1953 champion and Britain's chief hope, also made the quarter-finals. He eliminated Gordon Whitehead of England, 4 and 3 and then beat Richard Ashcroft of England, 5 and 3.

The quarter-final pairings: Carr-Slater, Bisplinghoff-Perowne, Patton-Philip Scrutton, England; and Conrad-Blayliss.

Copleys Defeat Cleaners

Copleys, who suffered five straight defeats at the hands of Individuals this season, finally cracked through with their first victory in senior women's softball league action last night when they trimmed the Cleaners, 8-5, at Central park.

Scoring four runs in each of the first two innings, Copleys gave Marie Cooper a good working margin but she finally needed help from Shirley Mosley in the sixth inning after Individuals threatened with a two-run outburst.

Ruth Oster, making her first start of the season, was tagged for of all the runs in her six-inning stint. Jocelyn Richmond, who had gone the distance in the five previous games and chalked up two successive no-hitters, finished up.

Chinese Students	3	5	0	6
United Services	2	6	0	4

Last night's score: United Services 15, Victoria City 2.
Next game tonight at 8.30, United Services vs. Chinese Students at Central park.

United Services snapped their five-game senior "A" men's softball league losing streak with a vengeance at Central park last night as they came up with a 19-hit attack to rout third-place Victoria City, 15-3.

Winless since they edged Chinese Students, 9-8, on May 12, Services moved within two points of the fourth-place Students as their usually weak batting attack pounded the deliveries of three City pitchers to all fields.

John Oliver started on the mound for the losers and lasted until the sixth inning, when he was relieved by Dennis Beaulac after giving up a total of four runs. Beaulac fared little better as he yielded a run in the sixth and went out for coach Bud Ross with four Services runs across the plate in the seventh.

Four more runs came in before the inning was over and Ross was belted for the final two Services' tallies in the eighth.

McLEAN IN FORM

Little Ralph McLean, who has been plagued by hard luck in his earlier outings, was in top form for the servicemen last night. The righthander was reached for only three hits and struck out nine batters while yielding single runs in the second and fifth frames.

Services get a chance to climb out of the league cellar when they take on the Students at Central Park tonight.

World Championship Bout On Memorial Arena Card

One of the best professional wrestling cards to be presented in Victoria for some time has been lined up by promoter Larry Marshall for Thursday night at Memorial Arena.

Entertainment will feature 10 top grapplers, highlighted by a best-of-three main event between Lou Thesz and Sky Hi Lee for the world's heavyweight championship. Luther Lindsay gained the right to meet Thesz, the current world champion, in an elimination bout last Tuesday but withdrew because of an aggravated knee injury.

Sky Hi Lee, known as the Texas Giant and a popular television grappler, has been pursuing Thesz for more than a year in an effort to gain a shot at the world champion. Thesz successfully defended his title in Victoria more than two years ago against English challenger Dave Jons.

Thor Hagen and Johnny Demchuk will meet Red Vagnone and Firpo Zybsko in an Australian tag team semi-main and Tommy Martindale takes on Don Kindred in the special event. An opening bout has also been lined up and the referee will be Danno McDonald.

Tickets will be on sale at 746 Yates street, 1320 Douglas street and 920 Government street.

Oak Bay Sets Junior Contest

Juniors of the Victoria Golf Club will play over 18 holes Saturday morning to decide who is to represent the club at the annual golf clinic which precedes the playing of the B.C. Open championship to be held this year at Shaughnessy, Vancouver, July 23-24.

Each club is entitled to send one representative and the winner of Saturday's competition will represent the Oak Bay club. Prizes will be presented to winners in the under-20 and over-20 handicap groups.

Draw and starting times:

8.20—Doug Munro and E. Clark.
8.25—C. Horwood and H. Simpson.
8.30—Don Munro and D. Cook.
8.35—R. Cook and P. Watson.
8.40—A. E. Matson and R. White.
8.45—J. Walker, T. Rise and R. Hemming.

Bob Morrison Seeks Ninth Victoria Title

Bob Morrison, a real veteran of the fairways, will be seeking his ninth Victoria amateur championship when a field of at least 65 tees off Sunday at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country club for the first 36 holes of the 72-hole medal play test.

Morrison, who won the B.C. Cement Trophy last year, is always at his best in the city championship but he will have plenty of stiff competition this time, as usual.

AT PEAK FORM

Bill McColl, who has won both the Vancouver Island Open Match Play Championship and the 36-hole Cowichan Golf Club Open in the past few weeks, is at the top of his game and will have the advantage of playing over his own course.

Bob Fleming, so far this year not as dominant as last year, is reported playing well and is certain to be one of the favorites. Vic Painter, John Merriman, Laurie Kerr, George Andrews, Jim Robertson and Frank Scroggs also rate as distinct possibilities along with a half dozen or more of the others in the entry of 65.

Hugh Morrison and Eric Hibberson are two stars who have not yet filed entries but post entries will be accepted up until 10.30 Sunday morning.

Third and fourth rounds will be played the following Sunday.

Draw and starting times for Sunday's two rounds:

8.30 and 1 p.m.—F. Ransan, C. Horwood, D. Munro.
8.35 and 1.06—D. Gilliard, J. Galbraith, C. Beggie.
8.42 and 1.12—R. Dunnett, J. Carlow, K. Bronsdon.
8.48 and 1.18—D. Ross, G. Sparling, C. Soaven.
8.54 and 1.24—M. Barlow, H. O. MacKenzie, H. Kirkham.
9.00 and 1.30—D. Mogarth, G. Jull, T. MacIntyre.
9.06 and 1.36—R. Fletcher, W. Holland, D. Carlow.
9.12 and 1.42—D. McConey, S. Mitchell, L. Barnes.
9.18 and 1.48—R. Shea, A. Robertson, M. Kolb.

MUST CLOSE SHAVES BURN YOUR SKIN?

NO! Not if you use
NOXZEMA 3-Way Shave
Medicated for cool, painless shaving
Switch to 3-Way Brushless with Noxzema Medication. Discover new face comfort. Here's how it works.
1 Prepares whiskers, skin, helps prevent razor cuts.
2 Built-in pain preventive soothes tender skin.
3 Medication helps heal invisible razor damage.
Use 3-Way Shave alone—or before and after regular lather. It will pay you a face comfort bonus in painless shaves!
Microdiagram shows how razor, no matter what type—safety, electric, etc., shaves off some top layers of skin—causing dozens of invisible cuts that smart and hurt.
SPECIAL OFFER! Two 45¢ tubes of 3-Way Shave 90¢ VALUE ONLY 69¢

For Better Living
Planned as a positive contribution to better living for Canadians, the International Calvert House Architectural Competition for the "Canadian Home of Tomorrow" attracted 661 entries from 17 different countries, the largest response ever accorded a competition of this kind anywhere in the world.

Plan submitted by Jean-Louis Lalonde, Montreal and Paris. Awarded Honorable Mention.
A brochure illustrating the winning home designs is available on request. Write to Calvert Distillers Ltd., Amherstburg, Ont.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prices moved narrowly in dull trade today on the grain exchange. There was limited commercial demand.

Small export sales of parcel lots were reported sold to Japan. Activity in oats was attributed to U.S. and domestic shippers. Barley trade was mostly domestic. Rye followed the activity of the U. S. market.

Overnight export loadings of wheat included: United Kingdom 930,000 bushels; Belgium 348,000; Ireland 185,000; Switzerland 195,000; Italy 555,000; and Saudi Arabia a small lot.

Lakehead prices for class two wheat were unchanged. IWA and domestic No. 1 durums were up one-eighth cent.

Board Hears Bid To Let Farmer Sell Own Milk

DUNCAN — The milk board conducted a hearing Wednesday on an application by George Kocurek, Gibbins road, for a producer-distributor licence which would enable him to resume selling milk from his own herd after being ordered by the milk board to stop this practice in March.

E. C. Carr, chairman with Prof. H. M. King appointed for the milk board, Mr. Kocurek's application for licence was opposed by Henry G. Robinson of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association and by three shippers to the local Silver Spray Dairy.

A. J. McDonald appearing for Mr. Kocurek, declared that of the 80 customers he supplied only four or five awakened to the local dairy when Mr. Kocurek was closed out. Mr. Mitchell said that he would show all the customers by Mr. Kocurek and that he then canvassed them.

Mr. Kocurek said that in May, 1954 the provincial health department told him what changes in his plant would be necessary for a licence. Mr. Kocurek made these alterations at a cost of $500 and continued building up his business and made a formal application for a producer-distributor licence in October, 1954. On March 1, this year, the milk board assigned Mr. Kocurek a quota for delivery of milk to Silver Spray Dairy and ordered him to cease selling direct to his customers. This Mr. Kocurek did.

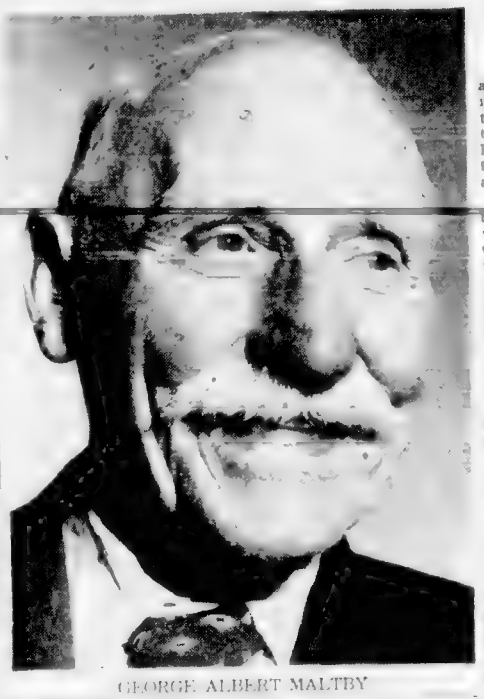
George Maltby Remains Hale and Hearty at 88, Settled on West Coast in 1891



GEORGE ALBERT MALTBY

A handful of flour bound over an axe wound stopped the bleeding and was standard first aid treatment in the early days on the west coast of Vancouver Island when a sharp axe was the homesteader's most important tool.

Oldest settler of the Long Beach area, George Maltby visiting this week in Victoria was one of the settlers who treated a badly cut foot with flour and he was able to hobble about doing chores on his isolated Schooner cove holding while his wound healed.

Hale and hearty despite his years, Mr. Maltby is living evidence that early hardships did him no harm.

Born at Morton, Derbyshire, in 1867, he came to Victoria in 1887.

All he remembers of Vancouver, when he landed at Port Moody by train a few years after the fire, was a few charred stumps. He took the first boat to Victoria and, as far as he can recollect, it was the Charmer.

A carpenter by trade, he helped build many of Victoria's old homes, including the original T. B. Pemberton home on Fort, Rae road.

He recalls that carpenters were paid $3 a day in those days and board was deducted when working out of town.

Mr. Maltby tells how the Indians brought in sturgeon [illegible] and sold them on the beach in front of the soap works.

Residents would buy [illegible]

Mr. Maltby first went to Clayoquot, five at the north end of Long beach in 1891. He and two companions pre-empted land.

Property he bought later at Cox's bay, he sold last spring.

Mr. Maltby believes he may have stuck closer to the West coast than any of the other original settlers. Though he now lives in a rented cabin in the village of Tofino, years went by when he never left his homestead.

By a wide margin he is the oldest resident both in age and [illegible] on the entire west coast of Vancouver Island.

When he took up his 154 acres at Schooner, some 10 miles from where Tofino now stands, he salvaged lumber from the beach to build his home.

He saw industries come and go as west coast residents waited through the years for the road to link the area to the rest of the Island.

He worked for wages during his second winter, helping to build a log flume to Sutton's Mill first to cut timber at Ucluelet.

Mr. Maltby recalls the building of a $1,000,000 sawmill at Mosquito Harbor about 1906 and its abandonment before any returns were made on the investment.

He ventured into business himself importing cattle to his cove, but without success. He still speaks with bitterness of a bid [illegible] yet of any letter being received from the Port Alberni council regarding its decision.

Ousting of the RCMP was favored after council was advised that cost of R. MP service would increase to $2,879 from $2,000 per man a year.

Mayor Lorne Jordan earlier this week expressed dissatisfaction with the effectiveness of the RCMP, particularly with regard to the lack of municipal policing and traffic supervision.

He named former B.C. or municipal police force members not now employed to contact the city of Port Alberni.

Other Island centres served by RCMP expressed only satisfaction for service.

RCMP Chief Says:

Who Polices Alberni City's Own Business

The question of policing Port Alberni is that city's "own prerogative," RCMP Assistant-Commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac said yesterday.

He made the comment when questioned about the decision of Port Alberni aldermen to employ a municipal police force.

The previous RCMP force [illegible] Port Alberni contract has been renewed for one year until March 31, 1956.

If a municipal force is organized RCMP members stationed there would be sent elsewhere with the federal force, he said.

NO LETTER YET

Nanaimo, reported from Ottawa that no letter has been received from Port Alberni council regarding its decision.

Beer Parlors To Pay $200 Licence Fee

City liquor licences were set yesterday by council's finance committee at $100 every six months for beer parlors and cocktail lounges, and $20 for every six months for restaurants serving beer and wine.

For each employee in excess of five beer parlors and cocktail lounges will pay an extra $7.50 every six months.

These fees suggested by the city solicitor and license inspector have yet to be approved by council.

An earlier recommendation of a $50 fee for restaurants was withdrawn after E. Heard, president of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association, told council that beer and wine sales in restaurants were insignificant. He said that at the $50 fee five out of eight restaurants would give up their provincial licences.

Consulting engineers' written support of the city engineer's plan for repairing the Memorial Arena has satisfied Ald. Brent Murdoch and the work will proceed.

Alderman Murdoch, who asked earlier for a delay in the work because he wasn't sure that the method of repairing the floor was right, said yesterday he still wasn't sure it is right.

But, he said, the Vancouver firm of Swan, Wooster and Partners had given written support to the city engineer's plan and responsibility for any failure could now be fixed.

Craig May Be Subpoenaed Before Sloan Commission

Tofino logger Sammy Craig may be subpoenaed before the Sloan Commission on the request of J. Gordon Gibson who said yesterday he wants to be cleared of "perjury."

In his original brief Mr. Gibson said Mr. Craig was paid off with 3,000,000 feet of timber to drop his appeal against a B.C. Forest Products forest management licence.

Mr. Craig subsequently denied the story, claiming that he sought the timber and had not been asked to drop his appeal in exchange for it.

Mr. Gibson told the commission yesterday that Mr. Craig, by denying his story, had made him appear guilty of perjury.

"No more serious charge could be made," he said.

He demanded that Mr. Craig come before the commission so the matter could be straightened out.

PROCEDURE OUTLINED

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan suggested Mr. Gibson make a request through counsel, D. counsel C. C. Locke and if the commission considered it a worthy request a subpoena could be issued to bring Mr. Craig down from Tofino.

Mr. Gibson said in a brief last week it of the timber given to Mr. Craig by B.C.F.P. was worth $12,000 over and above his normal profit from logging.

He said the deal was "surely . . . a demonstration of money talking against the interests of the public."

Vancouver solicitor Walter Owen QC, attacked what he termed a "vicious attempt to discredit and defame" large timber firms before the Sloan commission.

Representing the B.C. Loggers Association, the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, Mr. Owen rose at the opening of yesterday's session and referred to a "lamentable impression" created by some persons that the lumber industry was afraid to appear before the commission.

He also referred to a newspaper story which said Chief Justice Sloan "served blunt warning" on top lumber men that he expects them to appear.

Mr. Owen told reporters:

"To create the impression that they have been 'served blunt warning' of any other kind of warning is a vicious attempt to discredit and defame. It is a violation of even the most basic conceptions of fair dealing and fair play.

"The point is that the pulp and paper industry has spent more than three months preparing a brief to present to the Royal Commission and it intends if the industry will be available for cross examination on any issues that are not clear," he said.

He said in consultation with commission counsel Mr. Locke it was estimated lumbermen would probably be required to appear in September after the summer recess.

In his statement before the commission, Mr. Owen continued:

"These facts are a total refutation of the suggestion that industry is either afraid to appear before you or is not willing to appear to give you the benefit of their experience and views. Any suggestion to the contrary is factually wrong and completely irresponsible and it was to make the record clear once again on that."

Mr. Gibson wound up his testimony before the commission yesterday after 3½ days. His parting shot under cross-examination by Mr. Locke was that the present forest management licence system was at least the 'lesser of two evils' to the federal system."

"The whole thing is political . . . It's no good," he said.

'Situation Is Worse'

Smoke from Mills Irks Citizens of Cinder Alley

BY R. O. MARRION
Colonist City Hall Reporter

A city business man who wouldn't like to see the mills move out of town, sat in a cafe in Victoria's Cinder Alley and said, with a straight face, that the smoke situation was certainly no worse.

When he was asked, "Than when?" he laughed.

"A month ago," he admitted.

Then he added a mild cuss-ward as a large cinder made a sudden landing in his whipped cream.

W. A. McPhee, 620 Dunedin, also in the cinder area stretching northeastward from Victoria's mill section, didn't need to point to the black specks covering the white paint he had just applied to his house.

"Been an improvement?" he asked incredulously. "No, sir. It's worse."

"If anyone knows a satisfactory way to reduce smoke and cinders more the real people would be glad to spend money to put it into effect," said Thomas Walker, the city's smoke inspector. He said there had been a considerable improvement since the city's smoke by-law went into effect late in 1954.

NO COMPLAINTS

"There haven't been any complaints to council or the public works committee," said Ald. Arthur Dowell, chairman of the committee.

"But if we had the smoke by law I see were lots of complaints.

Those are some of the sides in the city's air pollution question, which seems to have as many sides as a round smokestack.

But some new moves on the smoke-and-cinder nuisance may come soon.

Alderman Dowell took note of the fact that most complaints may now go directly to the smoke inspector, instead of being addressed to the mayor or council.

He said he thought letters addressed to council but handled by the city manager should be brought to council's attention in the city manager's monthly report.

NEEDS ATTENTION

But when it was brought to his attention that the city manager merely reports that so many letters were referred to department heads so many to council and so many to the city clerk for "disposition of communications," he agreed the matter needed attention.

The report he said should give some indication of the source and subject matter of letters.

If the mills and other producers of smoke "are not playing ball, they should be brought into line, and I think the whole council would be in favor of that," he said.

Mr. Walker, whose annual report gave no figures for the numbers of complaints received, had two complaints on his desk yesterday morning, including one from Mr. McPhee. He said that some days "when the wind is right" he gets half a dozen complaints, but not often.

He emphasized that Victoria's mills and other industries had spent, and were still spending, thousands of dollars trying to curb the smoke nuisance, but he added:

"Right now I am prepared to deal drastically with anyone not making an attempt to improve conditions. If they won't co-operate, the only ultimate alternative is to fine them."

Mr. Walker accepted the fact that a tour of the industrial area provided examples of firms obviously violating the provisions of the smoke by-law. But he said they were all trying to eliminate smoke and cinders and "you can't shut the mills down by fines or force them to move out of town."

WATER SPRAY

One mill he said had installed a water spray in its smokestack to cut down the cinders. It was 80 or 90 per cent successful, but its smoke was still a nuisance.

"I've told them they must do something soon," Mr. Walker said.

Mr. McPhee showed a reporter cinders speckling his new white paint lying in a drift up to an inch deep along the edge of the walk in his back garden and misdemeanors piled up inside—wood and sealed windows.

He will consider taking up a petition to city council, he said.

In the present hot, dry summer Mr. McPhee said the cinder nuisance was "definitely worse. Everybody's kicking about it."

He said a carpenter who replaced a gutter two weeks ago had asked him, "Don't you ever clean your gutters?"

"The gutter was crammed chock a block full of cinders, and I clean them three or four times a year," Mr. McPhee explained.

The smoke inspector told him, Mr. McPhee said, that the cinders were carbon and carbon was good for him.

"I was gassed in the First World War and I don't think it carbon wasn't good for me," Mr. McPhee said.

EMISSION POINT

The city's by-law provides that smoke so dense it cannot be seen at the point of emission may not be emitted for more than six minutes in any hour, and that smoke that can be seen through dimly at the point of emission may not be emitted for more than 10 minutes in any hour.

Also prohibited is smoke "in any extent detrimental to the property of any other person or which is a nuisance to any person not engaged in the plant producing the smoke."

Penalty for the first offense is not more than $50 for the second offense not more than $100 and for the third and subsequent offences not more than $200.

Lloyd M. Mottershead, Work Point Barracks, was fined $25 for driving without a license. Harbhajan Singh, 250 Burnside east, was fined $5 for transporting sawdust without a covering tarpaulin.

Swimmers Exchange Greetings

Juan de Fuca Strait swimmers Bert Thomas and Pat Russell compared notes yesterday on the vagaries of the tide-ripped stretch of water they each hope to conquer within the next few days.

They spoke for 15 minutes, and talked animatedly about the temperature of the water, the strong tides and cramps.

They wished each other the best of luck for their separate attempts to swim the 18 miles from Victoria to Port Angeles.

And to cap it all off they agreed to hold a victory dinner after they finish the grueling swim.

Miss Russell, cheerful 18-year-old B.C. coed spent about an hour and a half in the water yesterday while Thomas churned up the sea for about two hours.

The Lacoman said late last night that he was all prepared to leave although the weather report "isn't so good" for tonight. He said it was almost a certainty that both he and Miss Russell would be swimming on the same night.

His sponsor, Earl Irwin, manager of the B.A.I. Sales in Victoria is expected to arrive first thing next week.

Farm Dairy Destroyed By Flames

Fire swept through a dairy building on the property of A. H. Abbott, 174 Goward road, Saanich, last night, destroying an undetermined amount of equipment.

Two fire wagons and a tank truck were sent to the blaze which firemen believe started in the roof from chimney sparks. Flames were controlled before they spread to a cow barn and shed nearby.

Only the concrete walls remain of the building which was empty when the fire started.

Juvenile Delinquency Blamed As Main Cause of Accidents

Juvenile delinquency is one of the prime causes of accidents in the community, Rev. William Huls told delegates attending the 21st Forest Products Safety Conference, which opened here yesterday.

Speaking at the morning session Mr. Huls said the three most points in every day living where attention to safety in the workers on the job were present dangerously, war and philosophical concepts.

"Young people in their early 'teens are making a devil of a nuisance of themselves in all our organized areas," he said. "And over 80 per cent of juvenile delinquents come from broken homes or are a result of bickering between parents."

Mr. Huls called on all parents to give more attention to their homes.

"Your city, province and church can depend on the quality of your home whence comes your moral force," he declared.

Mr. Huls said: "War makes the core of the personality so saturated with extremes that a pattern of violence has developed and is welcomed. It reflects our own attitudes of antagonism and our people are soaking them up.

The cure he said was to be got in live a life where it was easier to smile than to stick out your chin.

Finally we need a spiritual cure to our ills," said Mr. Huls. "Our children are empty lives. Our children are empty with no meaning or purpose to their living. We can all do something about that."

Labor's of organized labor should be reminded they have a responsibility to themselves as citizens, as well as to their membership, he continued.

The strike today, he said was departing from its economic, psychological and social purposes.

"It seems to me that the strike has become a technical thing . . . a technique to hold the whip over for men who won't work at it," he said. "That is encroaching upon the freedom and the mobility of labor."

Delegates from B.C., Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho, California, Alberta, Ontario, Illinois and Alaska are attending the conference which resumes in the Empress Hotel at 9:15 a.m. today.

Kindness Blamed For Fire

A youngster's love of birds is believed to have caused a fire that drove a family of four from their basement suite at Colwood at 3:45 a.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Marjorie Adams, Kildew Rd. awakened to find a fire in the garage adjoining her suite and escaped with her children, Pat 2½, Mike, 5, and Lee, 12.

Fire and a light bulb used by a man to provide a cozy nest of eight baby pigs may have caused the blaze. The birds were in the garage which is separated from the suite by a cement wall and insulation. All died.

Mrs. Adams expressed thanks to Colwood fire department volunteers who were quickly and efficiently able to confine damage to a small section of the garage.

Mr. Adams is employed on the Mainland and is expected home tonight.

Cherries Appear On Local Market

"Cherries ripe, cherries ripe! Ripe I cry." The old song is as timely as when it was written several hundred years ago. [illegible]

Just a word here, though, about a word often put these days before cherries—at 25 cents a pint! I said it's ripe.

Green Almeria grapes have returned to the market, too, and are sold by the pound, specially priced for week-end shoppers at 45 cents a pound.

As prices go, Texas watermelons now 10 cents a pound and Canteloupes 15 cents each are getting popularity. Canadian apples have put in an appearance at several stores and are selling at 10 cents a pound.

Strawberry prices are not showing even a slight improvement. While last week's baskets were 25 cents or two for 45 cents, they this week have gone up to 35 cents again. I must admit I am not buying it sugh.

With one of the delicious fruits, sponge cakes I saw yesterday for 30 cents, just think what a delicious shortcake you could make. These cakes come in [illegible] and as well as being extremely tasty, [illegible] need only one cake.

Vegetables Take Price Dip

Here's good news from the vegetable stores. Prices are due to take a big drop this week-end. Young, fresh cucumbers of three for 25 cents, lettuce two heads for 15 cents and green onions two bunches for 15 cents. Tomatoes, steaks at fresh as you could wish are 25 cents a pound. Carrots are 10 cents a pound as are [illegible].

Well-filled sacks of ripe [illegible] have mushroomed after an absence of several weeks and [illegible] three pounds for 25 cents. Three cans of something or other, you'll say.

Ceremony at St. John's Unites Mary Stark, Alan Gordon Thomson

A new home at 4524 Duatt road awaits Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gordon Thomson upon their return from a Mainland honeymoon. Mrs. Thomson is the former Miss Mary Elaine Stark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Stark, 1133 Fort street, and her groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan S. Thomson, 1230 Yates street.

Rev. Canon George Siddle heard the young couple repeat their wedding vows in St. John's church on Saturday evening. Mr. Frederick Chubb presided at the organ during the service and Mrs. A. Paver sang "O Perfect Love."

For her marriage the bride chose a ballerina length gown of butterfly pearl nylon net over taffeta. A tiny, white satin cloche, worn at a slant with sequins tapering in six points over the brow, held the fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis. Mr. Stark gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Paver, Stark matron of honor, was gowned in a ballerina length dress of silver lace. Lilac sparkling accent with matching bolero. Her headdress was of pink feathered carnations and her bouquet pink roses feathered carnations and blue iris.

Maid of honor, Miss Mable King, and Miss Edith Kingdom, bridesmaids, were identically gowned in floor length dresses of nylon net over taffeta in shades of pink and blue respectively. Their headdresses and bouquets were of pink roses, feathered carnations and blue iris.

A pink nylon frock with hooped skirt was worn by the flower girl, little Carol Nielsen. She wore a halo of pink feathered carnations and carried a miniature bouquet of the same flowers.

Mr. Donald Thomson, brother of the groom, was best man. For his brother, Alan Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reid were ushering were Mr. Thomas and Mr. Vernon Thomson, brothers of the groom, and Mr. David Stark, brother of the bride.

At the reception held in the Memorial Gardens, Lee Gordon, brother of the groom, proposed the toast to the bride. Mr. Thomson, father of the groom, proposed the toast to the bridesmaids. Mr. Donald Thomson, in addition to acting as groomsman for his brother, toasted Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reid while ushering were Mr. Thomas and Mr. Vernon Thomson, brothers of the groom, and Mr. David Stark, brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. H. [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] assisted Mrs. [illegible] receiving guests.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake lily knot by vases of pink carnations and white stocks.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride donned a pale blue suit with navy accessories, pink pillbox hat and garden corsage.

For Marilyn Saunders

Honoring Miss Marilyn Saunders, June bride-elect, Mrs. R. W. Smith entertained at a miscellaneous shower recently at her home, 811 Mckenzie avenue. The honor guest received a corsage of pink carnations before opening her gifts which were concealed in a wishing well decorated in pink and yellow. Her mother, Mrs. R. J. Saunders, and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. E. C. Carson, received corsages of narcissi and carnations. A decorated shower cake inscribed with the words, "Best Wishes, Marilyn and Pat," centred the table which was covered with a cream embossed cloth. Games were played and prizes were won by Mrs. I. Smith and Mrs. J. Carson. Guests were Mesdames Rachel Smith, R. Entwhistle, J. H. Kirby, I. Alexander, H. Gilbert, L. Foster, H. Lange, I. Smith, J. Carson, H. C. Mangin, S. Smith, A. Lindgren, F. Garrington, R. Holness, R. Johnson, J. P. Kirby and the Misses Dell Johnson and Marie Gilbert.

EMBROIDERY NEWS

The elegance of embroidery comes to offset and lure this summer, giving them added importance and surface interest. There are the beautiful lace-like Schiffli types and others, some take their inspiration from Oriental and Norwegian themes. There's the sophisticated type too, as modern as today, which gains tremendous charm when done in the dress fabric color or close to it, or in frosty white.

FOR WOMEN

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

To say the least it is highly reassuring to learn that there is one place where the police cause no trouble. In a front page news story this week we learned that Port Alberni doesn't want the Mounties any longer mainly we gather because the cost of maintenance has risen and according to the mayor of the port they weren't all that was to be desired of policemen anyway.

Then that stout-hearted mayor of Duncan, on being queried stated that the RCMP in his town were good and efficient and didn't cause any trouble. The good and efficient is all that one expects from a police force, but that the chaps aren't trouble some is going a bit overboard.

* * *

Now I wonder what the secret at Duncan is that the police cease to be troublesome? Are they overawed by all those army types who decorate their rambling villas with tiger skins shot in deepest Africa or India?

Those RCMP cars always appear if you happen to step on the gas a little too hard, and if you should happen to slide slowly past a STOP sign without actually coming to a dead stop there is bound to be one appear from absolutely nowhere. They really are most troublesome around here. I've found so I think I'll take off for Duncan some week-end to see for myself if all is as peaceful as the mayor says. That "good and efficient" sort of scares me off though from putting too much faith in that "no trouble" angle.

* * *

There were no policemen around this morning in Sidney to bother the somewhat determined efforts of a not too young woman on a brand new bicycle. There was no doubt at all that it was shining new as I first saw her only a few yards from the hardware store and the salesmen were still outside looking pleased and happy at the sale.

Now how do I know that the bicycle was new and was bought a few minutes before at this particular store? It wasn't the shaky way that she was riding the wheeler, although that might have been a clue. There was the tell-tale yellow ticket, which at first I thought was attached to her jacket, but on getting closer found it was on the bicycle. Being curious I slowed right down to see if I could read the price but it was twirling in the wind too fast. That spinning ticket has been bothering me all day.

Arctic Mystery Probe Planned by UBC Team

VANCOUVER (C... a mystery ship called investigation of Canada's vast Arctic region, will be undertaken this summer by a team from the University of British Columbia.

Dr. J. R. Mackay, assistant professor of geology and geography at UBC and a veteran Arctic explorer, will lead the party.

Mackay, who has been spending the past year on the Ellef Ringnes Island in the Arctic archipelago, said the team will be flown to the area by a Royal Canadian Air Force plane.

From Edmonton, three small planes will fly the party to the island.

Mackay said the team will be in the Arctic for about three months.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down, take things easy, watch your diet, get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face life with many interesting and fine years ahead, a time that is if you can avoid backache and the "tired out" feeling due to kidney and bladder disorders that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order, helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are aging, rundown or past it, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 54

Family Gives Up All Hope

Authorities and members of his family have given up hope that Thomas Ross, 15, Victoria-born member of the painting crew on [illegible] Ross and Sons, survived a fishing accident at Cow Bay river May 24.

On May 25 George Ross, one of his six surviving brothers, said last night a tracking dog took searchers to the edge of a deep pool at the river's mouth. There the missing man's hat was found. His car was not far away.

Tom took off alone for his fishing trip and went to his favorite spot near the mouth of the Cowichan river, his brother said.

For a time we had hoped but the fishing stories we've all told the story. We have come to the reluctant conclusion Tom drowned. How we will never know.

RCMP are searching the Cowichan river area where Mr. Ross is believed to have met his death.

Besides his brothers, Mr. Ross leaves a widow. Dorothy, and Daffodil, and a daughter, Peggy, 21, and son Maxwell, 4.

Quality Of Cod Drops

A drop in the quality of Pacific codfishing [illegible] at this time of year makes them practically worthless, deputy provincial fisheries minister [illegible] G. Alexander said yesterday.

He was commenting on a Colwood report [illegible] contained a statement that [illegible] had dumped 2000 pounds of cod at Victoria after he was advised that if he tried to give it away he would never sell fish here again.

The case brought up by John Ambra at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council disclosed that the fisherman was offered only two cents a pound for the cod.

"There are certain times of the year that cod are just not worth bringing in," Mr. Alexander said. "The quality drops off at this time of year and because they are hard to keep can aren't much in demand as summer approaches."

Caterpillar Campaign Scheduled

Cooperation of all householders to stamp out the progress of caterpillars which threatens the whole of southern Vancouver Island was asked yesterday by federal entomologists.

They asked every householder to spend one hour in his garden for the next two days to stamp out the threatening spread.

The [illegible] moths are showing up now on most fruit trees, also trees and road side brush.

A spray of DDT is most effective and if trees are started spraying now is a good time to [illegible] with arsenate poison and burn them. Another effective method, but rather hard on fruit trees is to burn the tents with a kerosene soaked rag on the end of a pole.

But wait until evening when the caterpillars have returned to their tents after devouring leaves all day.

Sometimes the spider web like tents are hard to see and it is just as well to make several inspections.

This is a peak year for the caterpillars when insects multiply to plague proportions every seven years.

Oak Bay and Victoria have taken to spraying the roadsides to check the insects.

Lion's Gate Approaches To Be Altered

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi has announced plans in Vancouver for improving the north approaches to the Lion's Gate bridge and for construction of four new Fraser river bridges.

New two-lane bridges will be built along the Fraser's north shore at Pitt river, Harrison lake, Dewdney and Deroche to replace the present outmoded bridges and relieve congestion.

Engineers have worked out a new cloverleaf design for the northern approaches to the Lion's Gate bridge and a second bridge over the Capilano parallel to the first.

Cost of all the work will total more than $3,500,000 and tenders will be called by September 1, the minister said.

The Emperor of Ginger Ales

Its superior quality is guarded by the Man from Schweppes

Connoisseurs of Ginger Ale – here is the Real Stuff! Schweppes Ginger Ale is the most aristocratic brand you can buy . . . dry, buoyant, piquant . . . delicious.

The English House of Schweppes sends its fabulous Ginger Ale essence over to be bottled here in Canada – under the aegis of Commander Whitehead, Schweppesman Extraordinary. Incredible as it seems, Schweppes – made from this imported elixir – costs no more than domestic ginger ales.

As well as being head and shoulders above ordinary ginger ales, Schweppes even looks different. Not pale. A pure sunny amber that the Commander prefers to show off in sparkling clear glass bottles.

Schweppes Ginger Ale also has those delightful little bubbles called Schweppervescence. Schweppes bubbles, you will notice, never waste themselves exploding in the bottle. Or even in your glass, as long as you don't disturb it. But when you drink Schweppes, you will find that each little bubble bursts upon your tongue, heightening the flavour of this incomparable Ginger Ale. Schweppervescence, what is more, lasts the whole drink through.

So ask for Schweppes Ginger Ale wherever you go. It's worth making a scene if you don't get it.

P.S. Schweppes also make the original Tonic Water for authentic tonic drinks, and a great Club Soda. Enjoy the whole family of Schweppes world-famous beverages — Schweppes Tonic Water, Schweppes Ginger Ale and Schweppes Club Soda.

Preemptive bids inject drama into the bidding and can create huge swings on a single hand. Their effect is demonstrated conclusively by the hand from a team-of-four match played by two teams in Great Neck, N.Y. recently. Team play is popular for its entertainment as well as enhance for knowing how a player's own preempt plus a partner's part will be rated by the scoring system. Sometimes the preemptive bid may be made with the idea of keeping the opponents from finding their best contract.

Usually the preemptive bidder, having told his fair share of a long suit and little defensive strength, should accept the decision of his partner as to penalty doubles. Partner knows pretty much what kind of hand he has, but he can't tell what kind partner has. In this deal, however, in addition to the state of the match, further considerations influenced South to take out the double. If South could be made to bear in mind that he was quite close to the opponents' game contract, he might be able to get back on lead to collect a heart trick. Moreover, with four hearts, there was the danger that the defenders might run out the necessary tricks. South reasoned that if that was what he determined, he could back off and let partner gamble to bid four hearts.

South hadn't bargained on having his partner redouble. But North felt that his partner must be playing for a make in order to rescue the double doubt. Besides, he too was aware of the state of the game. One slip on the part of his partner made the game contract a near-impossible task. After the opening spade lead was won, East returned the spade 9. Declarer drew trumps and then led the nine of clubs. Poor West! If he covered with the ten, declarer would hold two tricks in clubs, four diamonds and two of the ace-heart tricks could be taken by the ruffing finesse. Declarer discards the jack of hearts. He ducked because South's king will win. After that

June Playing Havoc With Autumn Hearts

By JUNE HAVOC

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — I believe a woman has to reach a certain age before she appreciates — and I mean the word appreciate in every sense — the opposite sex.

There are very few interesting men under 65. The most enchanting evenings I have ever spent in my life have been with gentlemen who are usually considered middle-aged, or more so.

I was fortunate enough to snag a gentleman very near my own age who through some miscalculation of Father Time breathes all the poetry, charm and grace of another time. (TV producer William Spier)

I'm not saying there aren't others available. There are — for the discerning — the woman who's willing to take the time to search for such a man, and who recognizes such a man when she sees him. I'm afraid there aren't many of us left.

My best beau a few years ago was a dreamboat pixie named Sir Charles Mendl. We went steady with Elsie's approval for six months or so. He took me to the beach where he sang to the open sea, to the sand, to the glorious day — and to me. His wit was gentle but nonetheless devastating. His charm radiant. He was and is a gallant. My idea of a perfect date.

Then there was Louis Verneuil, who I shall remember as long as I live as one of the gentlemen I would rather be with than any of my contemporaries.

Screen Violence Defended By Star as 'Good Theatre'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Violence in Hollywood films has been cited from all sides. Here's one man who defends it.

He is Lionel Wagner, [illegible] director who starred in and helped produce "The Big Combo," one of the films which brought forth a wave of protest about hooliganism in movies. Recently he directed himself in "Storm Fear." You can gather from the title that it is not a gentle subject.

"You can't get away from violence in drama," he said. "When you have two people in conflict, it is bound to result in violence — either in words or action. If you do not have conflict, you do not have drama.

"There is nothing new about violence in the theatre. Shakespeare's [illegible] is certainly a violent play, and it has withstood the test of centuries.

"HAMLET" CORPS FILLED

Shakespeare is replete with violence. Look at "Hamlet." The stage is littered with corpses at the end of the play.

When Orson Welles did "King Lear" on TV, they showed an eyegouging. I was shocked by it, but applauded. It was a good theatre.

With all that, I feel that the [illegible] of Hollywood [illegible] a case when violence is justified for its own sake.

If a hospital scene is shown, there is no reason why it should be sanitized. I think it's [illegible] to show an example of medical progress.

The Big Combo was [illegible] to highlight and clarify [illegible] of a crime syndicate. [illegible] Richard Conte looked. When Conte got a hearing aid in the picture, we applauded a touch [illegible]. Well-defended the scene as being more subtle and less brutal than the senseless beatings in many films.

I don't think movies incite people to violence," added Wilde. "far from it. Kids seeing 'The Blackboard Jungle' would be repelled by [illegible] Hollywood [illegible] Hollywood [illegible] Hollywood

Sensational Feat of Fakirism

Having reached the age where he finds it increasingly difficult for him to tour the country and demonstrate the more sensational feats of fakirism, Scara-Bey, a Parisian disciple of the art, is now passing his knowledge on to the younger generation in a school in the French capital. Two such pupils, 17-year-old Jacqueline Amara, left, and 22-year-old Marianne Guillemot, are ready to go on tour and perform the sensational act of passing a sword through their cheeks as they have demonstrated here with the help of their teacher.—(Central Press Canadian)

Macmillan Gives Strong Support To Auditorium, Convention Plan

Ald. Robert Macmillan enthusiastically supported yesterday the idea of using the capital city grant over a period of years to build a civic auditorium and convention centre.

He said he will ask the city council to pursue the matter and see if the provincial government would permit this use of the grant, which is now $50,000 annually.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Wednesday that Victoria should have a civic auditorium to help make it the Pacific coast convention city and to develop its tourist industry, and J. Everett Brown, chairman of the capital city grant and deputy minister of municipal affairs, called the auditorium proposal "a good suggestion."

The idea was advanced Wednesday morning in a Daily Colonist editorial.

VERY GOOD IDEA

"I'll say unequivocally that I think it's a very good idea," said Alderman Macmillan, a member of city council's finance committee which has tourist traffic in its jurisdiction.

"A civic auditorium would give us something substantial to look at and say, 'We've got something.' It's one of those things Victoria should have, and doesn't have."

"There's just one thing: would the provincial government consider this use of the grant?"

Support of the idea also came from Ald. Brent Murdoch, another finance committee member.

"I think it's a very good suggestion," Alderman Murdoch said. "We certainly need an auditorium and convention centre."

ANOTHER TACK

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, a third member of the finance committee and also a city representative on the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, took another tack.

He said he was all in favor of an auditorium, but not of using the capital city grant, as such, to build it.

If the government would give the city a straight grant in lieu of taxes, about $100,000 a year, he said, "then I would think the idea was wonderful."

But if the government were to allow the capital city grant, intended for beautification, to be used for an auditorium, then it would be setting a precedent and other B.C. cities would want the same thing.

"A civic auditorium is a civic responsibility," he said, "and something the people should decide on in a plebiscite."

If the ratepayers decided they want an auditorium, "which is definitely needed," Mr. Edgelow said, then a commission of business men, engineers and contractors, "and no laymen," should be formed before spending a nickel.

Such a commission, formed early enough, could prevent the city from embarking on "a white elephant like the arena," Mr. Edgelow said.

NEW FERRY SERVICE DEAL ALMOST SURE

Mothers Hit for Six

Mothers of Glenlyon boys warmed up for match with under-12-year-old school team yesterday at Beacon Hill. Here, at wicket, Mrs. W. P. Bowden watches Mrs. John Wade take warm-up swing. In fielders' positions are Mrs. G. Petter and Mrs. Harry Gladwell. But all their practice went for nought; the schoolboys beat their mothers handily.

Dock Still Not Fixed

A Washington State Ferries vessel will begin a Victoria-Port Angeles service on Saturday, June 18, if the docks of Black Ball Line Ltd. are available.

The vessel, probably the veteran Kalakala, will have room for 320 cars and 4,000 persons each way during her four round trips a day, seven days a week. The service will end October 15 until late spring of 1956.

The CPR will continue to operate three daily round trips until late September, as scheduled some time ago.

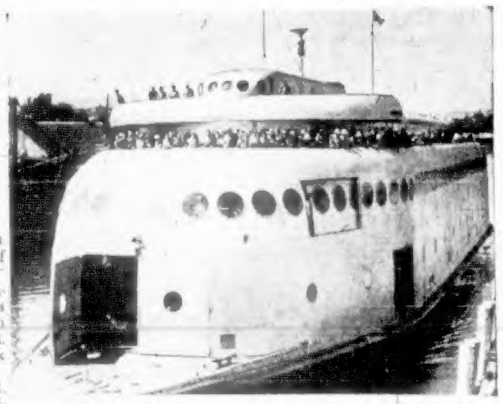
Eagerly awaited announcement of a replacement for Black Ball's Mv. Chinook was made by H. L. Crombie, managing secretary of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and C. E. Blaney, WSF representative in Victoria, following their return from a three-hour conference with WSF officials in Seattle yesterday.

They stressed that the service depends on the outcome of negotiations for Black Ball terminal facilities in Victoria at a meeting at 10 a.m. today with Capt. Alex M. Peabody and Col. George Paulin, both of Black Ball.

Victoria negotiators will be G. F. Dunn, chamber vice-president, Mr. Crombie and Mr. Blaney.

Colonel Paulin said last night that company docks in Victoria and Port Angeles are available for lease and added: "We will go into the meeting with every co-operative hope."

"We definitely have the assurance of Washington State Ferries for a modern ferry that will be quite adequate for the run, provided we can obtain terminal facilities," Mr. Crombie said.



Mv. Kalakala, expected to replace Black Ball Ferry's Chinook on Victoria-Port Angeles run, can carry 80 cars, 1,000 passengers.

Depends on Finance

"It is too early to say that we have overcome this transportation problem as the whole decision about its institution now lies with Black Ball officials," he said. "If financial arrangements can be completed satisfactorily, the service is assured."

Mr. Crombie said the chamber felt Black Ball "has failed us very sadly so far and we hope for their utmost co-operation" in obtaining Victoria docks. WSF officials will negotiate with Black Ball for it's wharves at Port Angeles.

The terminal facilities will have to be leased "at a reasonable rate," he said. "The tourist flow this season suffered a setback from the sudden withdrawal of Black Ball and will have to be rebuilt at great expense."

"We are quite sure that with the proper advertising, there is sufficient traffic from June 18 to mid-October to make the run a profitable one for both the CPR and Washington State Ferries," the chamber official said.

He added that there will "most likely" be four WSF round-trips a day, seven days a week.

Mr. Blaney said the WSF vessel will not operate after October 15 because " it will be a summer operation, similar to our Sidney-Anacortes service."

However, he added, "There is a strong possibility that if the prime consideration of terminal facilities can be solved, this service will continue in future years and may be expanded to the benefit of all concerned."

Within 48 hours of a financial agreement for docks, Mr. Blaney said, "definite schedules will be announced and a publicity campaign will be instituted immediately."

The two officials pointed out that Victoria organizations and WSF must notify all parts of the United States, especially the west coast, that service has been restored.

"The vessel we have in mind will perform to everyone's satisfaction," he said. "She is well equipped to handle all types of traffic on the basis of four round trips a day, as at present proposed."

WSF offer was received by Mr. Crombie Wednesday. He said the officials in Seattle were "most co-operative and were anxious to give maximum service."

George I. Warren, Victoria & Island Publicity Bureau commissioner, also attended the Seattle conferences.

WSF was represented by Floyd McDowell, general manager; H. G. Swendson, administrative assistant, and an independent traffic survey engineer who has a wide knowledge of Pacific Northwest transport.

Kalakala, now connecting Seattle and Bremerton, was described by Mr. McDowell as the "only practical ship for the Victoria-Port Angeles run."

He told The Daily Colonist last night that "it may take a week or so" to juggle ships so that present WSF customers are not affected.

"But at least we're trying," he added.

Civic, municipal, provincial and business officials in this area will meet in the office of Mayor Claude Harrison at 3 p.m. today to hear a report from Mr. Crombie and Mr. Blaney on negotiations with Black Ball.

Stuart Keate, chamber president, in a telegram to CPR president N. R. Crump at Montreal yesterday, said his statement Wednesday that the CPR could not help was a "bitter disappointment."

"We cannot help feel we are innocent victims of a private war between CPR and Black Ball, provoked by their entry in Nanaimo competition, your entry Port Angeles route, thus skimming cream off both," he said.

"Must advise you Canadian Pacific's public relations and prestige in this area severely damaged, with government, business and labor already on record deploring this neglect of duty to important capital area."

Staff Cut Result Of Freeze Order

Authorities at St. Joseph's hospital said yesterday they could see no alternative but to cut staff to meet the provincial government's freeze order on hospital budgets.

"It's the public that's going to suffer," commented the Sister Superior. "We are just not in a position to cope with our 1955 budget."

Meanwhile Royal Jubilee administrator George Masters says his hospital will not cut services to meet any rise in operating costs.

"Those of us who spend all our time worrying about these problems have tried to explain our position to the government, but without success," said Mr. Masters yesterday.

Health Minister Eric Martin feels that staff cuts could be made without reducing services, but nearly all hospital administrators in the province disagree.

Sister Superior of St. Joseph's admitted that it would be almost impossible to maintain the present services if there were staff cuts.

"I don't see how we can cut our services because it would directly affect the sick people we are here to benefit," she said.

Wages at St. Joseph's, she said, were not as high as those in other hospitals, although they were comparable to the wages paid at Royal Jubilee.

"They are definitely not as high as they are in Vancouver," said the Sister Superior.

She said St. Joseph's administrators had always tried to keep costs down to a minimum but "we've been running very close to the margin in the last few years and 1955 looks even more grim."

Scrap Army To Strengthen RCAF Chief Air Force Adviser Suggests

TORONTO (CP)—Air Vice-Marshal John L. Plant, formerly of Victoria, Canada's top military adviser on air weapons, said Thursday night the army should be abolished to make manpower available for a stronger air force.

Canada's limited population is not sufficient to support both a fully-effective army and air force, he said. He was speaking at a dinner of the Aviation Writers' Association.

"My suggestion to the government, if they ever ask me, would be to do away with the Canadian army and put the money into a few aircraft.

"We should put our effort into the things that cost the most dollars and take the least number of men"

Modern military aircraft cost $2,000,000 each, and require only a few men to operate. Any army division of 20,000 men cost little more than three or four aircraft.

It is elementary economics that in Canada's case the most prudent investment would be in the aircraft, Air Vice-Marshal Plant said.

He said he was not voicing government policy but was prepared to support his statements.

Air Vice-Marshal Plant said that if war broke out with Russia the Western powers would have little difficulty winning.

"We are keen, anxious and willing to take them on any time they attack us. And we will knock hell out of them."

REPORTERS RESPONSIBLE

He told the 300 U.S. and Canadian journalists they have been guilty at times of stirring up "a heliuva panic about all the things that go on behind the Iron Curtain."

AIR VICE-MARSHAL JOHN L. PLANT

Referring to recent articles painting the Russians as having wrested air superiority from the west, he said:

"I wonder if our memories are not a bit short.

"If he hadn't taken on the West, Hitler and the Germans could have licked the Russians.

"Without weapons of mass destruction, we could lick them hands down—and why we should be scared I'm damned if I could see."

"We do have weapons of mass destruction and we are going to plant them on them the minute they kick over the traces."

In Ottawa Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, Chief of the General Staff, said Air Vice-Marshal Plant's words sounded like "a very irresponsible speech on which I would not care to comment."

Officials Predict:

U.S. To Command Canada's Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—More clues to a coming vast air defence buildup in Canada have been divulged by officials here.

It appears likely that most of this buildup — airfields, control towers, hangars and housing for personnel—will be undertaken by the United States.

One authority said the Canadian government is anxious to have American servicemen, who probably will do the job, designated as forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This would partly get around the touchy, for the government, matter of Canadian sovereignty in regard to U.S. forces in this country.

The latest hints about the buildup came Wednesday at Montreal from Air Marshal Roy Slemon, chief of the air staff, and Air Vice-Marshal Larry Wray, chief of air defence command.

Air Marshal Slemon was reported as telling a group of aviation writers that Canada and the U.S. are moving toward a completely unified North American air defence system with a single over-all commander.

MILITARY THINKING

In reply to a question about this in the Commons Thursday by Opposition Leader Drew, Defence Minister Campney said the air chief was not declaring government policy but "was simply stating a trend in military thinking."

Outside the Commons, officials said appointment of an over - all commander would have political ramifications, such as the probability that an American would be peacetime commander of Canadian armed forces.

They said there already is close integration of the two countries' air defence commands. Fighter planes closest to the point of any attack would go up to meet it, irrespective of which country they belonged to.

Montreal Vice Drive Shuts 24 Night Clubs

MONTREAL (CP)—City police wielded the big stick Thursday and closed up 24 Montreal night clubs and liquor - dispensing establishments.

Pacifique Plante, assistant police director who heads the anti-vice campaign, said the 24 have been refused municipal permits for this year. Renewals were granted in 135 cases.

The move was the first big crackdown since police announced in March that city operating permits would not be granted automatically, but only after applicants had been screened. All clubs were allowed to remain open during the check up.

Who Laid an Egg?

Pigs Is Pigs, but What Is Rabbits?

FRANCOIS LAKE, B.C. (CP) —Are rabbits always rabbits, or does it depend on their environment?

In northern B.C.'s Francois lake, Mrs. H. Neave raises rabbits as a hobby and thinks environment is stronger than heridity. Last year a mother rabbit died, and Mrs. Neave farmed the bunnies out to a barn cat. The cat adapted herself and the rabbits well, and soon had her charges eating meat and turning down greens.

The payoff came recently when one of the rabbits finally snapped and started making like a chicken. It's doing all right so far, sleeping in the hen house, rolling in the dust and strutting around the pen, but has two problems: How to climb up on the perch and how to lay eggs.

Mrs. Neave is watching closely to see how the rabbit manages these difficulties, particularly the egg-laying.

Problem Not New — Science Counter-Attacking

Germs Battle Wonder Drugs; Penicillin Losing Punch

BY PETER BRUTON

Penicillin is losing its punch!

So, too, are other antibiotics, such as streptomycin, polymycin, terramycin and similar disease-killers that were hailed as "wonder drugs" when introduced a few years ago.

Dr. Murray Anderson, medical officer of health at Royal Jubilee Hospital here, says it is all due to the individual germs becoming more resistant to the drugs.

"There has been an increasing number of infections which don't respond as readily as they used to do upon treatment by antibiotics," said Dr. Anderson.

The problem, he says, is not a new one.

Germs are becoming more resistant to the antibiotics in much the same way as an inoculation of a small number of germs into a human being will cause a solid resistance to a full-scale attack from a certain disease.

"But of course you must remember that new antibiotics are being developed all the time," said Dr. Anderson.

Doctors and nurses who daily come in contact with disease germs are more prone to infection now than a few years ago. And their infections are harder to clear up.

"Actually it's affecting all people, not just nurses and doctors in particular," said Dr. Anderson.

He said there are a large number and range of antibiotics and it is a continuing race to keep ahead of them.

However, antibiotics are finding startlingly broad applications in other fields and by serving as efficiency experts they are already raising the standard of living.

Antibiotics, for example, are making silk worms produce silk more quickly and are speeding up the honey output of bees.

Recent experiments raise hopes that the drugs also will prove effective in keeping fresh food longer. Terramycin, tested on fish, greatly reduced its spoilage rate. And the experimental use of antibiotics on vegetables added two days to the store life of spinach and kept cole slaw fresh three times longer than usual.

Scientists predict that it will not be long before antibiotics become as popular for non-medical use as they are today in the field of medicine.

'Fanaticism' Cited After Tax Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—An independent member of the Commons said Thursday Quebec does not want to be the victim, in federal matters, of the "ignorance and fanatism on which certain religious organizations in British Columbia gorge themselves."

Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, talked of the "narrow-mindedness of certain Pacific coast Protestants" and said their views, transplanted in the federal field, "would be harmful to our beliefs and our school system."

Mr. Gagnon injected his remarks in a Commons speech supporting his motion—ruled out of order—calling for full deductibility of the Quebec income tax from federal income tax.

The 46-year-old furniture merchant charged the federal government has overshot its rights in making grants to Canadian universities.

"It is an injustice against Quebec taxpayers who pay a considerable share of these grants largely collected by institutions which refuse to recognize the rights of our compatriots in other provinces."

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF spokesman Thursday attacked as "inherently wrong" the federal government's decision to cut its personal income tax levy 10 per cent in Quebec—only province levying its own income tax.

Hazen Argue, Assiniboia, said in the Commons the move will create an income tax structure "which cannot help but contribute to national disunity."

"This looks like an ill-conceived attempt to maintain the political fortunes of the Liberal party in the province of Quebec," he said.

Mr. Argue urged that, instead of the federal proposal, Quebec or any province should have the option of collecting its own income tax. Deductions from federal tax collections should be on a scale equivalent to what the province would otherwise receive under a federal-provincial tax rental agreement.

Two Quebec Independent members, Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Fernand Girard, Lapointe, criticized the federal move as inadequate.

Blind Man Gets Sight In Dispute

NORWICH, England (Reuters)—Blind Peter Barr got into an argument with his wife last week, struck his fist on his palm—and suddenly the woman he had never seen materialized before his eyes.

Barr has been blind for three years.

Pigs Is Pigs, but What Is Rabbits?

FRANCOIS LAKE, B.C. (CP) —Are rabbits always rabbits, or does it depend on their environment?

In northern B.C.'s Francois lake, Mrs. H. Neave raises rabbits as a hobby and thinks environment is stronger than heridity. Last year a mother rabbit died, and Mrs. Neave farmed the bunnies out to a barn cat. The cat adapted herself and the rabbits well, and soon had her charges eating meat and turning down greens.

The payoff came recently when one of the rabbits finally snapped and started making like a chicken. It's doing all right so far, sleeping in the hen house, rolling in the dust and strutting around the pen, but has two problems: How to climb up on the perch and how to lay eggs.

Mrs. Neave is watching closely to see how the rabbit manages these difficulties, particularly the egg-laying.

Canada Hits Back-Door Bid

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada protested Thursday — for the second day in a row — against a back-door attempt to rush through Congress legislation more than doubling the U.S. tariff on hardboard imports and, in the Canadian view, clearly violating the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

'Fanaticism' Cited After Tax Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—An independent member of the Commons said Thursday Quebec does not want to be the victim, in federal matters, of the "ignorance and fanatism on which certain religious organizations in British Columbia gorge themselves."

Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, talked of the "narrow-mindedness of certain Pacific coast Protestants" and said their views, transplanted in the federal field, "would be harmful to our beliefs and our school system."

Mr. Gagnon injected his remarks in a Commons speech supporting his motion—ruled out of order—calling for full deductibility of the Quebec income tax from federal income tax.

The 46-year-old furniture merchant charged the federal government has overshot its rights in making grants to Canadian universities.

"It is an injustice against Quebec taxpayers who pay a considerable share of these grants largely collected by institutions which refuse to recognize the rights of our compatriots in other provinces."

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF spokesman Thursday attacked as "inherently wrong" the federal government's decision to cut its personal income tax levy 10 per cent in Quebec—only province levying its own income tax.

Hazen Argue, Assiniboia, said in the Commons the move will create an income tax structure "which cannot help but contribute to national disunity."

"This looks like an ill-conceived attempt to maintain the political fortunes of the Liberal party in the province of Quebec," he said.

Mr. Argue urged that, instead of the federal proposal, Quebec or any province should have the option of collecting its own income tax. Deductions from federal tax collections should be on a scale equivalent to what the province would otherwise receive under a federal-provincial tax rental agreement.

Two Quebec Independent members, Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Fernand Girard, Lapointe, criticized the federal move as inadequate.

Problem Not New — Science Counter-Attacking

Germs Battle Wonder Drugs; Penicillin Losing Punch

BY PETER BRUTON

Penicillin is losing its punch!

So, too, are other antibiotics, such as streptomycin, polymycin, terramycin and similar disease-killers that were hailed as "wonder drugs" when introduced a few years ago.

Dr. Murray Anderson, medical officer of health at Royal Jubilee Hospital here, says it is all due to the individual germs becoming more resistant to the drugs.

"There has been an increasing number of infections which don't respond as readily as they used to do upon treatment by antibiotics," said Dr. Anderson.

The problem, he says, is not a new one.

Germs are becoming more resistant to the antibiotics in much the same way as an inoculation of a small number of germs into a human being will cause a solid resistance to a full-scale attack from a certain disease.

"But of course you must remember that new antibiotics are being developed all the time," said Dr. Anderson.

Doctors and nurses who daily come in contact with disease germs are more prone to infection now than a few years ago. And their infections are harder to clear up.

"Actually it's affecting all people, not just nurses and doctors in particular," said Dr. Anderson.

He said there are a large number and range of antibiotics and it is a continuing race to keep ahead of them.

However, antibiotics are finding startlingly broad applications in other fields and by serving as efficiency experts they are already raising the standard of living.

Antibiotics, for example, are making silk worms produce silk more quickly and are speeding up the honey output of bees.

Recent experiments raise hopes that the drugs also will prove effective in keeping fresh food longer. Terramycin, tested on fish, greatly reduced its spoilage rate. And the experimental use of antibiotics on vegetables added two days to the store life of spinach and kept cole slaw fresh three times longer than usual.

Scientists predict that it will not be long before antibiotics become as popular for non-medical use as they are today in the field of medicine.
